CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney.

The following play came up in the national masters' contract pair championship. Forcing partner to ruff, even though the declarer can over-ruff is an unusual play, but is the only play that will stop game in this hand.

♠ 10-9-8-5	♥ A-K-7	♦ 6-4-2	♣ 8-4-2
♠ 9-6	♥ A-K-7	♦ 6-4-2	♣ 8-4-2
♠ A-K	♥ A-K-7	♦ 6-4-2	♣ 8-4-2
♠ Q-7-3	♥ A-K-7	♦ 6-4-2	♣ 8-4-2
♠ 7-6	♥ A-K-7	♦ 6-4-2	♣ 8-4-2
NORTH
♠ 7-2	♥ 10-8-5-4-2	♦ 9-8	♣ J-10-9-3
♠ A-K-J-6-3	♥ K-3	♦ J-10-5	♣ A-K-5
SOUTH

The Bidding

South opened with one spade. West bid two diamonds, North bid two hearts. East passed and South bid three spades. West passed and North went to four spades.

The Play.

West opened the king of diamonds. When holding the ace, king and queen, the king is led followed by the queen and the ace if played on the third round. On West's king North, the dummy, played the deuce, East the nine and South, the declarer, played the five of diamonds. West continued with the queen of diamonds and East played the eight, completing his echo showing out, and requesting his partner to continue diamonds. The ace was then led by West, East discarding the deuce of hearts, discouraging a heart lead, and South, the declarer, followed with the jack.

West held four spades to the ten spot and if the declarer happened to hold the ace, king, jack, West could make no spade tricks. Of course if East held one of the honours, then West's ten would make. A club or a heart lead would give the declarer an easy game but West decided to try and find at least the seven of spades in his partner's hand and returned the seven of diamonds. A small club is discarded from dummy and East trumped with the seven of spades which forced South, the declarer, to over-trump with the jack of spades. This play established the ten spot for West, and while the declarer did cash all of the clubs and all of the hearts he was forced to lose one spade trick and this set his contract one trick.

BAVARIA STICKS TO BAN ON NAZI UNIFORMS

Berlin, June 25.
Bavaria has revolted against the Reich and has definitely refused to raise the ban on the wearing of Nazi uniforms.

The Premier held a meeting of the Diet this morning at which he announced the decision, and declared that Bavaria would strictly adhere to its constitution and law, and would take steps to defend its rights to maintain law and order in Bavaria. His speech was received with loud cheers.

The Diet, without discussion, passed a resolution supporting the Government policy, all parties, except the Communists, voting for it.

The Nazis were absent as they were expelled last week for wearing their uniforms.

The Bavarian Premier has sent a letter to President von Hindenburg, emphasising Bavaria's loyalty to the Reich and explaining that its refusal to raise the ban on the Nazi uniforms is based on legal grounds.—Reuter.

MAN HUNTERS

BY MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

Susan Carey, 19 pretty and an orphan, lives with her Aunt Jessie in Chicago, and takes a secretarial course at a downtown business school. There she meets Bob Dunbar, heir to a fortune. She is employed as secretary for Ernest Heath, architect. Jack Waring, Heath's assistant, tries to start a flirtation but is rebuffed. Mrs. Heath smiles. Susan, Ben Lampman, a young musician, takes her to a studio party but she does not enjoy it. Dunbar takes her to lunch and tells her he is going abroad. Susan's aunt departs on a visit and Rose Milton stays with Susan. Lonely, the girl goes driving with Waring and Ray Flannery, employed in the next office. Waring kisses her and she resolves never to go with him again. Ben Lampman asks Susan to marry him and will not accept her refusal as final. Waring apologizes for his childish behavior.

CHAPTER XX

"You've got plenty of time, miss." That was Simon, grinning at Susan and helping her out of the car.

"Thanks. You did that beautifully," she told him, feeling conspicuous with her armful of flowers. She went to sit on one of the benches outside of the station. Idly she noticed a girl in white flannel with a great Russian wolfhound on a leash, pacing up and down. There was something familiar about the set of the beautiful little head under the rakish, white hat. When the girl turned her profile Susan knew her at once. It was Denise Ackroyd. Deliberately Susan looked the other way. She could not quite forgive that girl for having interrupted her and Bob Dunbar at luncheon. The old pain began to throb in her breast.

"I was so happy a moment ago," Susan thought resentfully. "Why need she remind me of him? I was trying to forget."

Irridibly her eyes were drawn back to the straight, graceful figure. At that moment Denise's gaze met hers. She bowed frigidly and moved away.

"I wonder if her family know she goes around with the Stringlows' crowd?" Susan reflected thinking disdainfully of that sordid menage to which Ben had introduced her. She buried her face in the roses as the train roared into the station. Susan found herself seated in an almost empty coach and through the window caught a glimpse of Denise casually embracing a tall, blonde young man, carrying golf sticks. Unaccountably her heart lightened. In the back of her mind all this time unacknowledged, had lain the fear that Denise might be the unnamed charmer in Bob's life. It did not seem so hard to lose him to someone she had never seen. A real flesh and blood rival was more terrifying. "Perhaps it isn't true," Susan thought.

She wondered where Bob was and when he was returning. How strange that he had not even written her a line! She had watched the mails day after day until pride had come to her rescue. Then the dream had died and more than one night her pillow had been wet with tears.

She dismissed all this now resolutely and began to think of other things—the house she had just left and her employer with his lean, ascetic face and quizzical eyes. Surely Ernest Heath had everything to be desired—wealth, position, friends and that beautiful house and garden. She could hear herself describing the place in detail to Rose or to Aunt Jessie. Aunt Jessie would sniff at what she called "fol-de-rols," but she would be impressed just the same.

However, it was Ray Flannery who first heard the story of Susan's visit.

"My eye! Flowers, where are you going with that girl?" Ray shrieked, meeting Susan in the hall. Susan turned a blooming face. "Aren't they lovely?" She asked. "They're from Mr. Heath's garden. I had to go out there to take dictation. He's laid up."

Ray whistled softly. "Getting a stand in?" She inquired. "I'll bet the missus didn't pick those for you."

Susan said with dignity, "One of the maids did. Mr. Heath told her to."

Ray whistled. "One of the maids! My hat! How many do they have and what kind of a place is it?"

"It's—oh, it's beautiful!" said Susan, eyes shining. "It's out in the real country. There's every kind of bird you ever heard of—"

Ray chorled. "Wouldn't you think they'd want to live on Lake Shore drive or somewhere like that? Wouldn't you think they'd have a duplex up near the park? How anybody can see that country stuff gets me!"

"It's lovely," Susan told her. "You couldn't have a garden if you lived in a duplex apartment."

"Who wants a garden?" Ray demanded. She had followed Susan into the office and draped herself gracefully over a partition. "Me, I'd have a standing order at a florist's for orchids or maybe gardenias."

Jack Waring interrupted them. Sounds like your line, sugar," he said impudently. Ray made a saucy face at him.

"You know me, old thing!" To Susan she said, "See you later. Had your lunch?"

Hastily Susan said, "I've got so much work to do I'm going to have a sandwich sent up." Ray departed. Curiously Waring gazed at Susan.

"The boss must have been feeling better," he hazarded. Susan returned his look with utmost candor.

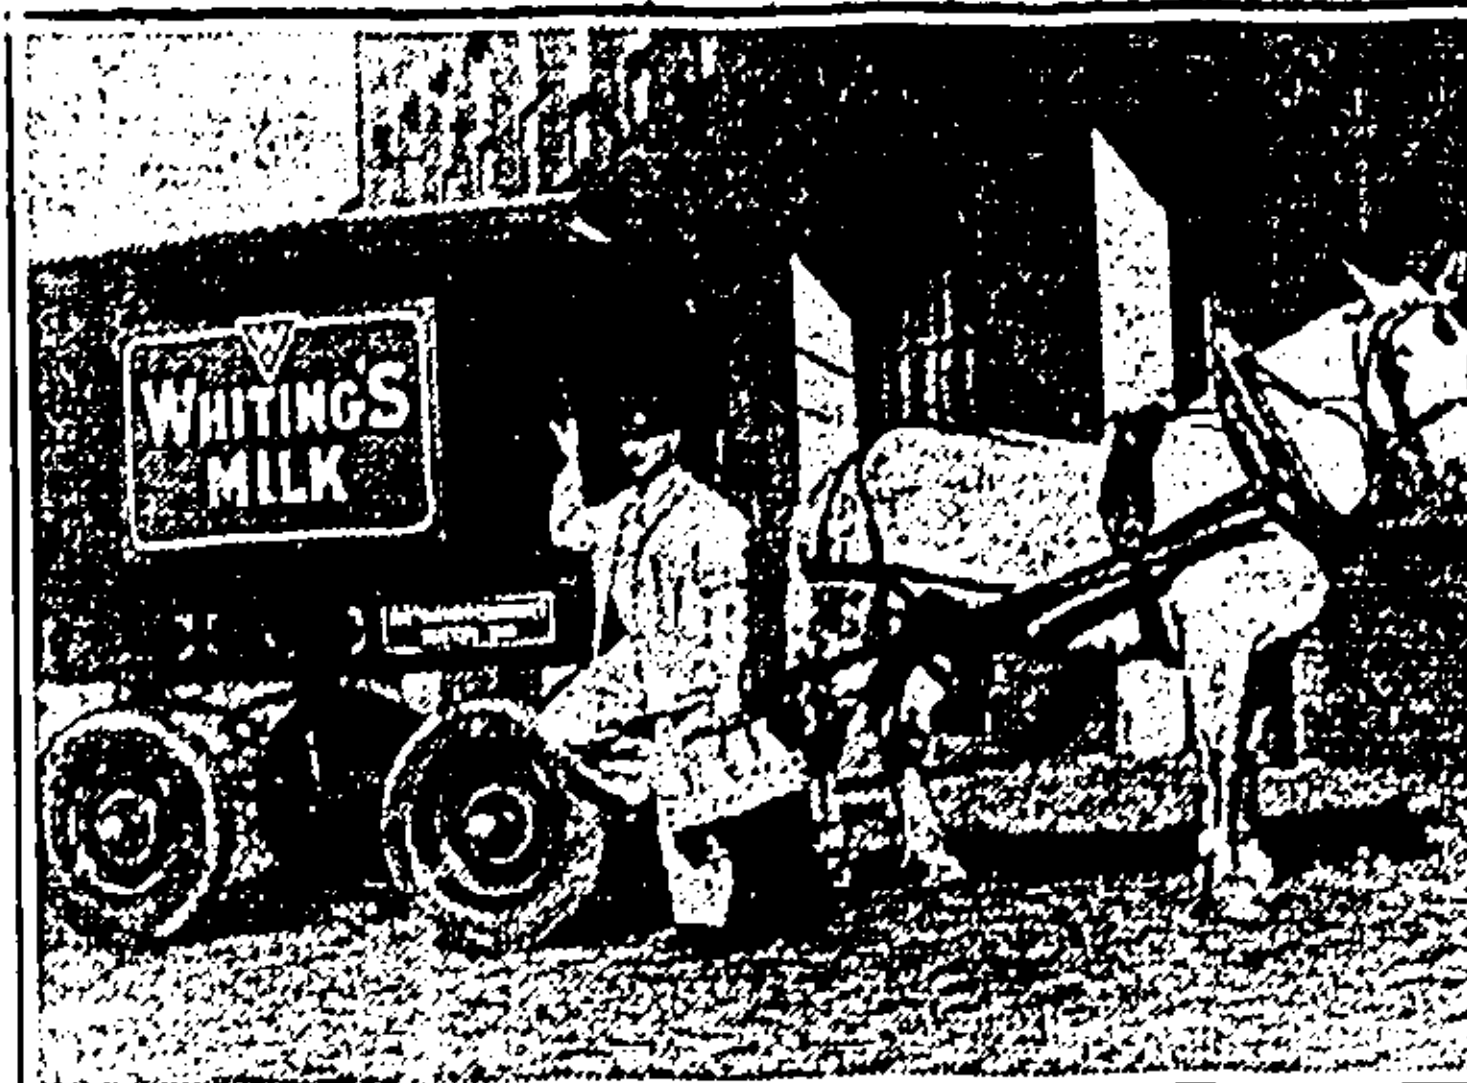

"No, he wasn't really," she explained. "He looks miserable. But he was so nice. He told Simon to wait and had all these gathered for me. It was sweet of him, wasn't it?"

Waring agreed gravely, keeping his thoughts to himself. He had learned several things in the last month or so about this girl. Cynic that he was, he had discovered that Susan was to be taken at her face value. What she said she meant and what she seemed to be she was. It was startling but true. Jack Waring had not understood that at first. Now he was a little ashamed of his earlier attitude.

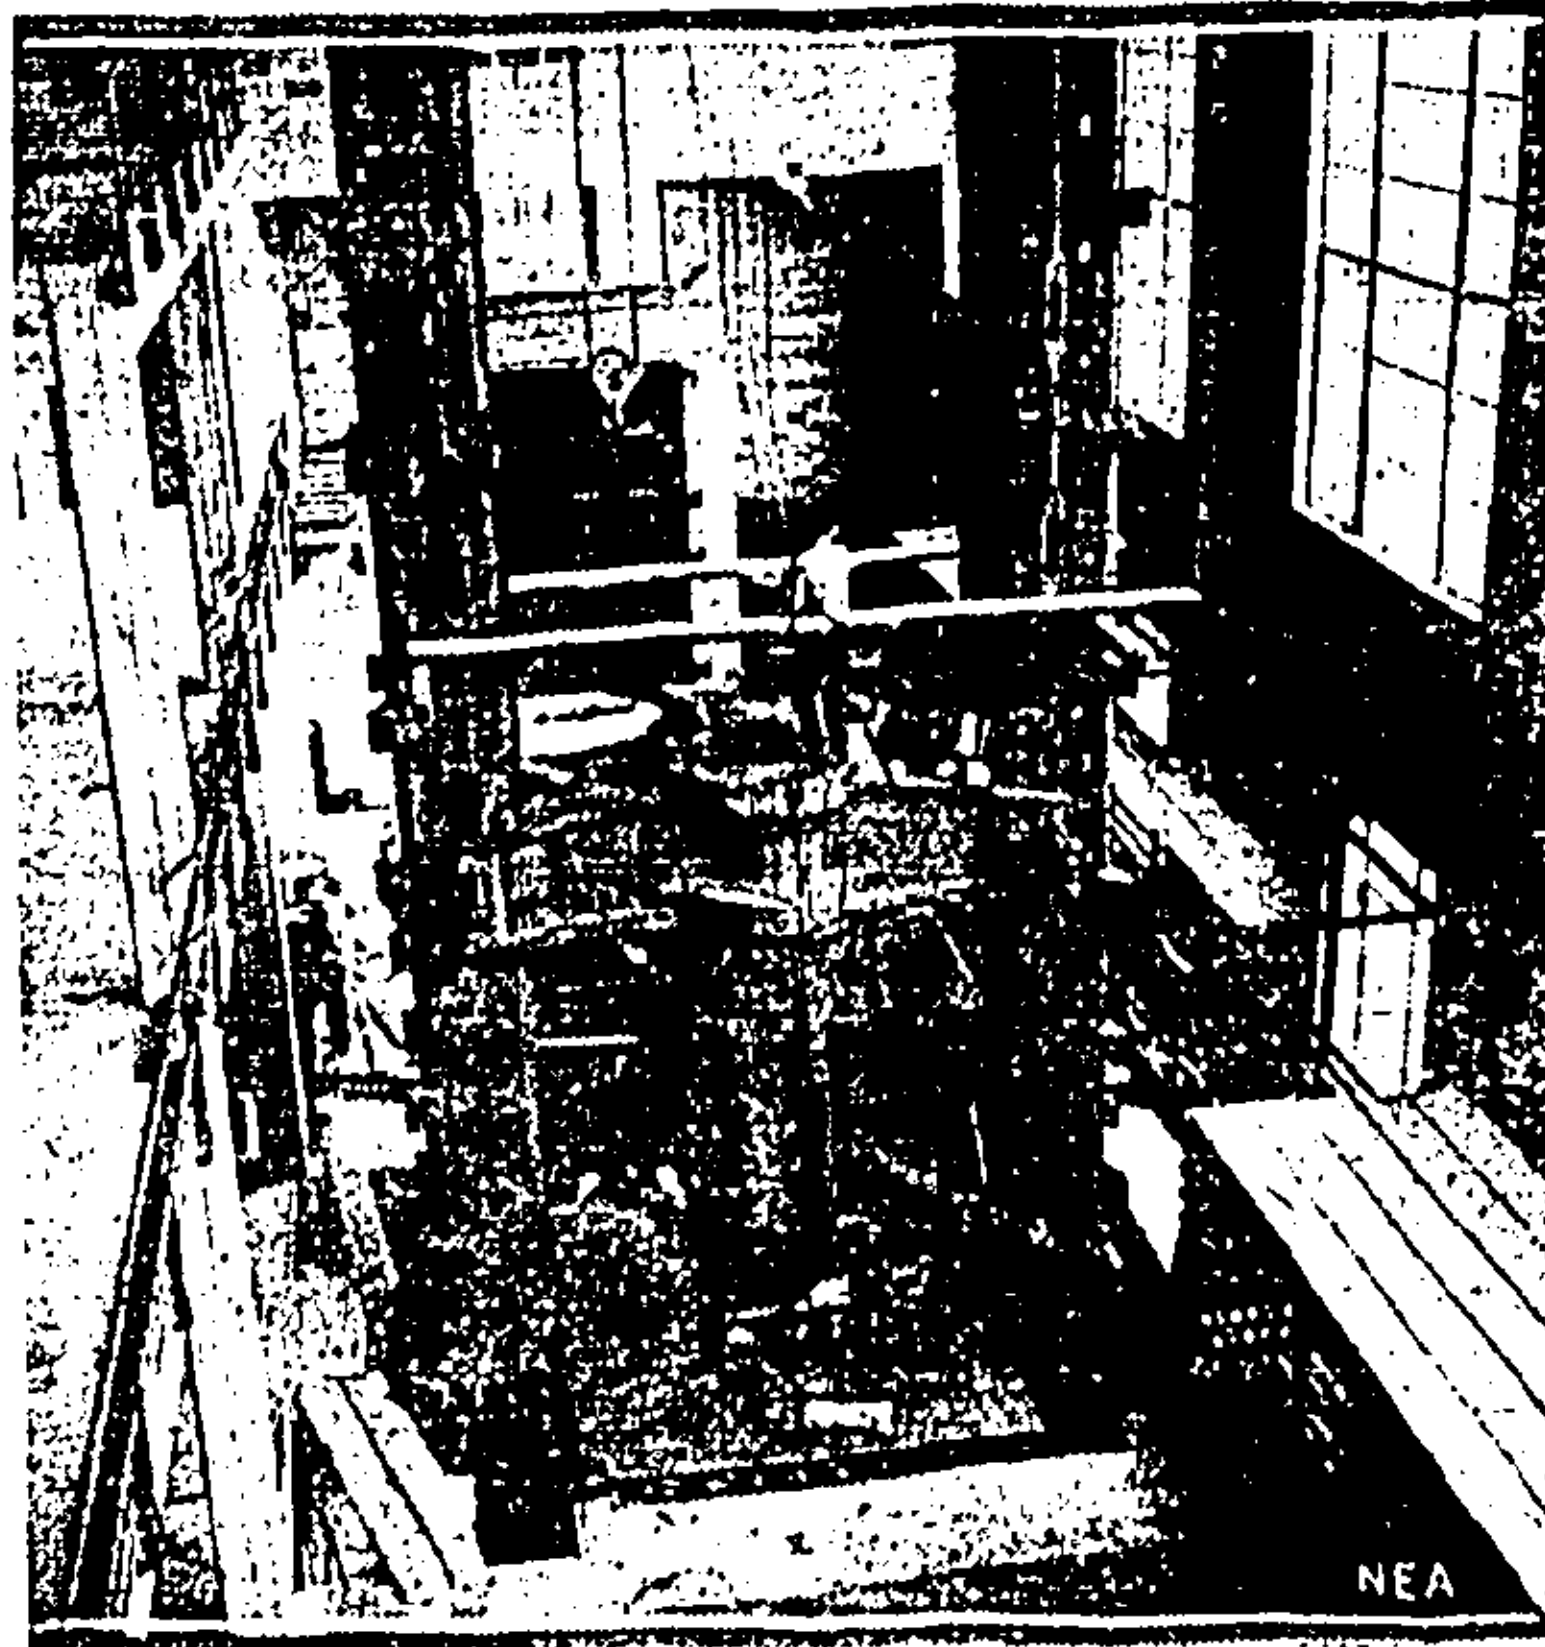

Susan began to wish Waring would go. He made her nervous, sitting there drumming on the desk with his well-manicured fingers and eyeing her with that speculative gaze. She put away her hat,

The rattle of the milk-wagon wheels no longer will arouse Boston folk from their slumbers at untimely hours. The wagons have been equipped with pneumatic tyres, as this picture shows. It's an achievement of the city's anti-noise campaign.

Here is one of the gigantic installations in the University of California's engineering research laboratory, which will be used in concrete research work in connexion with the Hoover Dam construction. Stress, shrinkage, etc., will be studied, for the dam will be the world's largest single block of concrete.

thrust the flowers into an umbrella stand and flipped open her desk. The man smiled wryly, recognizing signs of dismissal.

"Sorry you're so busy," he said smoothly. "I wanted to tell you about meeting an old friend of yours."

Susan had slipped a sheet of paper into the machine. Her eyes, intent on her work, raised to his for an instant.

"Old friend of mine? Really? Who is he?"

"Listen to her," the man teased. "For all you know it might have been a girl."

Susan laughed, embarrassed. "I know," she said, "but there was something about the way you said it that made me think—"

"It's all right," he told her. "It was a man and he was very much interested to know what you were doing."

Susan waited for him to go on. She thought impatiently that he was being rather silly. Why so much secrecy?

"Don't you want me to tell you about it?" Waring was laughing at her openly now and the girl lifted her great, luminous eyes to his own in wonderment. Quietly she said, "Yes, very much. Please go on."

She was scarcely prepared for the name he uttered nor could she restrain the warm colour that flooded her cheeks.

"It was young Bob Dunbar," Jack Waring said. "And he was asking for you."

"Bob Dunbar?" As in a dream she answered.

"Yes. The old man wants some sort of Elizabethan shack out at Half-Day, you know, and Heath told me to run over and give him a line on it."

"No. I didn't know." Outwardly Susan was composed, but that throb of her blood told the tale.

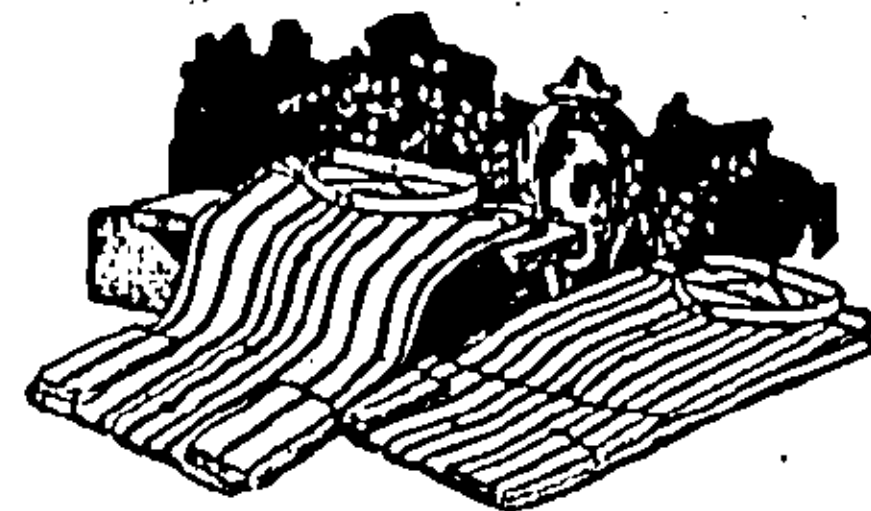

"He's a handsome devil, isn't he?" pursued Waring. "Where'd you meet him?"

She kept her fingers steady on the keys. "At business school. He was taking the course—some whim of his father's. Yes, he's very nice."

"Very nice. Very nice." The futile, foolish words mocked her. As if she hadn't been dreaming of Robert Dunbar's image for months. (Continued on Page 10).

Although it is still asserted
Japan is not likely to recognize
Manchukuo before the Lytton
Commission's report is published,
it is expected that one of Count Uchida's first acts after his installation as Foreign Minister,
probably on July 5, will issue a statement clarifying Japan's aims and intentions in Manchuria.

Nanking Replies.
Nanking, June 26.
It is understood that the Foreign Office has already replied to the Japanese protest over the dismissal of Mr. Fukumoto, the Dairen Customs Commissioner,
the communication being handed to the Japanese Consul here last night.

The terms of the letter have not yet been divulged. —Reuter.

Denial That Dismissal War Illegal.
Shanghai, June 26.
Sir Frederick Maze, Inspector
General of the Chinese Maritime Customs, issued a reply this afternoon with reference to the reported declaration of the Japanese Government that the recent dismissal of Mr. Fukumoto, Commissioner of Customs at Dairen, was contrary to Article 3 of the 1907 Dairen Agreement.

Sir Frederick Maze stated that the action of the Customs authorities in dismissing Mr. Fukumoto did not contravene the agreement
and did not necessitate a consultation with the Kwantung Government.

He quoted the first three articles of the agreement. The first says the Inspector General will come to an understanding with the Japanese Legation at Peking in cases of appointing a new commissioner, the second that staff members of the Maritime Customs be Japanese with the exception of a suddenly occurring vacancy, or temporary requirements in the service, when other nationalities may provisionally be sent to Dairen, and the third declares that the Inspector General will inform the Governor General of the leased territory beforehand about the change.

Sir Frederick Maze points out that prior to effecting the provisions of Article 3, it was first necessary to execute the provisions
of Article 1. He said that Mr.
Fukumoto's successor had been duly nominated and when the Legation authorities concurred with the nomination, the Government General of the leased territory
would be informed.

He concluded by saying that
Mr. Fukumoto's insubordination was without parallel in the annals
of the Customs Service. —Reuter.

General Honjo, Commander-in-
Chief of the Japanese forces in Manchuria, has returned to Mukden after making flights over most of the war areas in North Manchuria, including one in the direction of Taiheio, in which area General Ma Chan-shan is operating.

It is fully expected here that the Manchukuo will take over both the Customs stations and the Post Offices by August 1, and probably by July 1; if their arrangements are completed in time. —Reuter.

MANCHUKUO CUSTOMS

THE DAIREN STAFF RESIGNS

Hankow, June 26.
Despite the prevailing stringent attitude of the Nanking Government regarding the Dairen customs, it was reported to-day from Japanese sources, that the Man-chukuo's policy remains unchanged
and the Chief of the Bureau of Taxation of the Finance Ministry,
Mr. Matsuzo Gonda, hurriedly left
for Dairen to-day.

In this connexion, it is reported that the Manchukuo Government is adamant, and in the event of failure to take over the Dairen
Customs, it is prepared to establish one in the leased territory as a final measure. The place selected for such a Manchukuo customs has already been elected, namely, at Wafangdian, and the necessary preparations have been completed to construct a new customs building with a sum of Yen 20,000. —Reuter.

Seizure Of Customs.
Dairen, June 26.
The Manchukuo has started to take over all the Customs in Manchuria except Dairen.

Owing to Mr. Fukumoto's dismissal all the Japanese officials of the Dairen Customs have decided to tender their resignations.

Not Manchukuo Instructions.
Emphasizing that his action in refraining from remitting the Customs revenue to Shanghai was not taken under instructions from Manchukuo, Mr. Fukumoto, in a statement regarding his dismissal, explained that dual collection of customs would have been inevitable, and leading to serious international complications.

If the revenue had been remitted to Shanghai, and it was for the purpose precluding the possibility of such a situation that he took what he considered to be the best step. —Reuter.

Japanese Resign.
Dairen, June 26.
All of the Japanese officials of the Customs have resigned, and in a statement declare it is their intention to work for the autonomy of the Manchukuo
Customs, owing to Nanking's refusal to heed Mr. Fukumoto's attempt to reach an amicable agreement between Nanking and the Manchukuo Government. —Reuter.

Bank to Remit Customs.
Dairen, June 26.
Following an order from the Manchukuo Government, the customs revenue which the bank is holding, pending a settlement of the dispute, will be remitted to the Manchukuo Government to-morrow. —Reuter.

Japan's Protest.
Tokyo, June 25.
The Japanese Government has protested to Nanking regarding the dismissal of Mr. Fukumoto,
Commissioner of Customs at Dairen, as contrary to Article III
of the 1907 Agreement which stipulates that there must be no
dismissals or appointments of customs officials at Dairen without first consulting the Governor of Kwantung.

In protesting against the arbitrary step taken, disregarding the negotiations at present taking place at Peking and aiming at an amicable solution, Japan holds the Chinese Government responsible for whatever developments which might be precipitated.

Tokyo Perturbed.
Official circles are said to have been perturbed on learning that the Manchukuo is definitely preparing to establish a Customs Office on the Wafangdian border
of Kwantung and the leased territory if Dairen refuses to resent to Changchun as entail double payment of Customs,
though unofficial observers consider that Nanking's dismissal of
Mr. Fukumoto opens the way for Japan to negotiate with Manchukuo the whole question of the Manchurian Customs. Hence
Japan's intimation to Nanking
that China will be held responsible for whatever developments which may arise.

Although it is still asserted
Japan is not likely to recognize
Manchukuo before the Lytton
Commission's report is published,
it is expected that one of Count
Uchida's first acts after his installation as Foreign Minister,
probably on July 5, will issue a

LESSON SERMON.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, HONGKONG

"Christian Science" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist,
yesterday.

The Golden Text was—"When ye received the word of God which ye heard of us, ye received it not as the word of men, but as it is in truth, the word of God, which effectually worketh also in you that believe. (I Thessalonians 2: 13.)

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible—"And it came to pass also on another sabbath, that he entered into the synagogue and taught; and there was a man whose right hand was withered. And the scribes and Pharisees watched him, whether he would heal on the sabbath day; that they might find an accusation against him. And looking round about upon them all, he said unto the man, Stretch forth thy hand. And he did so:
and his hand was restored whole as
the other." (Luke 6: 6, 10.)

The Lesson-Sermon also included
the following passage from the Christian Science textbook,
"Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy—"Christian Science is dawning on a material age. The great spiritual facts of being, like rays of light, shine in the darkness, though
the darkness, comprehending them not, may deny their reality. The proof that the system stated in this book is Christianly scientific resides
in the good this system accomplishes, for it cures on a divine account, the Principle which all may understand. (p. 546.)

WIMBLEDON
TOURNEYSEVEN OF EIGHT
PLACES FILLED.

London, June 25. Of the last eight places in the Men's Singles at Wimbledon, seven have already been filled, four more qualifying on Saturday in addition to "Bunny" Austin, Jiro Satoh and Ellsworth Vines, all of whom got through on Friday.

There were no surprises with the sole exception of the defeat of Jean Borotra, the remaining French "hops", who went down unexpectedly to Maier, the Spanish No. 1, by three sets to one.

The others among the last eight not mentioned are Francis X. Shields, Sydney B. Wood (holder), and F. J. Perry. Shields did not have an easy passage, but was given a hard fight by Menzel, who won the fourth set after 22 games. The American won the other three sets quite comfortably.

Wood won in straight sets from his countrymen, Gregory Mangin, while Fred Perry was not seriously extended by Wilmer Allison. Perry won the first two sets in convincing fashion, ending up in the third, to win the fourth by 6-2.

The last place has not yet been decided. In the second round of the Mixed Doubles, Aoki and Mrs. Peacock beat Rodzanko and Senora Pons by 6-4, 6-3.

Their Majesties, the King and Queen were among the spectators today. Results:—

CINEMA SCREENING

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES.

"The Magnificent Lie," a story of a great love growing out of a strange deception, is Ruth Chatterton's latest starring picture. It was adapted from Leonard Merrick's popular novel, "Laurels and the Lady," and Berthold Viertel directed it for Paramount.

"The Magnificent Lie," which is now showing at the King's Theatre, has three chief points of interest, in addition to the unusual plot. It comes as a new addition to the list of outstanding Chatterton dramas, which already includes "Sarah and Son," "Anybody's Woman," "The Right to Love" and "Unfaithful." It introduces Stuart Erwin in a role in which his laugh-making talents are turned to dramatic importance. It brings forward a new leading man, Ralph Bellamy, long a favourite on stock stages, recently a Broadway star.

As a girl of doubtful character, hungry for honest love, Ruth Chatterton has a great opportunity to portray an interesting woman character. The girl, a cheap cabaret entertainer, impersonates the romantic ideal of a visionary boy. Her masquerade, starting with a gay wagger, becomes tragically realistic.

The dramatic emotion is intensified by occasional flashes of comedy, and Stuart Erwin's interesting character joins these two elements of the story, some youthfulness and much dramatic talent to his role. The cast includes Sam Hardy, and two French stage stars, making their bow in English pictures in "The Magnificent Lie." They are Françoise Rosay and Charles Boyer.

Berthold Viertel, the director, is one of Europe's best-known directors and playwrights. Recently he has been devoting himself to the production of talking pictures in Hollywood. He has directed "The Four Devils" and directed "Seven Faces." Samson Raphaelson wrote the screen play. His recent work includes, scripts for "The Smiling Lieutenant," "The Jazz Singer," "A Boudier Diplomat" and "Serena Blandish."

The setting of "The Magnificent Lie," New Orleans, is important to the development of the story because the swift change of feeling that takes place is typical of the spirit of that southern city. Production experts carefully copied New Orleans scenes for background atmosphere for the picture.

"Strangers In Love." Not a native New Yorker appeared in a New York setting used by Director Lother Mendes for the Paramount talkie, "Strangers In Love," an adaptation of the novel, "The Shorn Lamb," which will show at the King's Theatre, commencing next Wednesday.

Kay Francis announced Oklahoma City as her birthplace. Freddie March sings praise of good old Racine, Wisconsin. Mendes himself is from Berlin, Germany.

Stuart Erwin confessed nativity unique with a stork setting in Squaw Valley, California. Others were found to distribute their birthplaces as follows:

Julietta Compton, Columbus, Georgia; George Barbier, Philadelphia; Lucien Littlefield, San Antonio, Texas; Earle Foxe, Oxford, Ohio; writers Grady Jones and William Slavens McNutt, Roseland, Indiana; and Urbana, Illinois; one electrician named Hoboken, but there were those present who expressed the belief that he had got his A. E. F. experiences mixed up with his other vital statistics.

WHY NOT THE LATEST.

Much has been said about the Economy of Automobile Production by the Motor Giants with world wide manufacturing subsidiaries.

The fact is, of course that an independent manufacturer, provided he has enough production to demand, and get, the lowest prices on raw materials—as Studebaker does—can concentrate manufacturing and General Management to such an advantage that, assuming that Studebaker and one of these giants produce exactly the same car, Studebaker can produce it for less money. It's wise to buy a Studebaker.

DAYLIGHT-SAVING

The desirability of following Britain's example by adopting daylight-saving during the summer months is, we notice, again being urged in Malaya. This is a matter which is periodically aired in the East, but which somehow, in spite of manifest advantages, does not result in definite action. It is interesting to note that in Malaya some twelve years ago the issue was taken so far as the introduction of a Daylight-Saving Bill in the Legislative Council, but this measure was later withdrawn by reason of unofficial opposition. It was shortly before this that Shanghai gave a temporary trial to the plan, but abandoned it later, partially, we believe, because other Far Eastern centres would not come into line. In the same year, the Hongkong General Chamber of Commerce went so far as to draft a resolution in favour of putting forward the clock by one hour during the period from May 1st. to September 30th., a plan which was supported by the Chinese Chamber. The Government was even approached on the matter, but at a special meeting of the General Chamber subsequently held, it was decided to make no change. In the following year, the subject was again raised, but the Chamber saw no reason for changing its mind. Since that time, very little has been heard locally of the matter, although every now and again correspondents raise the point why, in a Colony in which evenings are so short, we cannot follow the Old Country's example.

Despite the rebuff to the movement in 1920, many people in Malaya think it opportune to bring forward the issue once again. The change proposed twelve years ago was quite simple. The Bill proposed that the clock should be advanced by half an hour so that "without curtailing the present hours of work it will shorten the time in the morning before work is started, leaving a longer period of daylight after the day's work is finished for outdoor recreation." Bankers jointly approved the plan, while the Municipal Commissioners also supported it. However, when the Bill came up for consideration, out of eight Unofficials seven opposed it, with the result that the Governor eventually decided to withdraw it, although at the same time saying he had not been influenced by the arguments against the measure. He still believed that it would be a very good thing, making for the health and happiness of the community, but he was persuaded to drop the Bill because he had obtained promises that by voluntary efforts the objects at which the Bill aimed would be largely attained. Actually, an era of starting and finishing work half an hour earlier was then begun and has to a certain extent been since maintained, but the practice is not by any means general. In many cases, we read, five o'clock has again come to be regarded as the normal time for closing down, and assistants who show a desire to leave half an hour earlier are not regarded with favour. This is one of the reasons why the subject has again been revived, in the hope of putting the matter on a regular and uniform basis.

Here in Hongkong, as we say, the question has lain dormant for some considerable time, but we do still hear advocates of the change urging its desirability. There is no sound reason, as we see it, why office work cannot begin here at eight o'clock in the morning in the height of summer and conclude at four. The arguments advanced against the change are those which were put forward before England decided to adopt the measure, and experience in the Old Country has shown the many advantages of the alteration, which is now automatically put into force every year. When the matter was raised in Hongkong in 1919, the Chinese Chamber went so far as to suggest that there should be daylight-saving all the year round—quite a good idea, too, considering the shorter evenings in the winter. The whole subject is, we feel, worthy of reconsideration here in Hongkong. Is it too much to hope that when another year comes round it will be taken up again?

The Right Use of Leisure.

One kind of unemployment not often mentioned in the discussions on the subject is that which affects a person who is in receipt of a livelihood but who does not know how properly to employ the hours when he is not earning it. None can measure its extent. Statistics are unavailable. But personal observation is more eloquent than figures in showing that it takes in a large element of the world's population. The proof lies in the constant quest for diversion. Fundamental in the definition of diversion is its absence of lasting satisfactions. It is a ready-made pleasure, thriving only on novelty, which, having passed, ceases to be any other than a boring pursuit, and in consequence is soon abandoned. One after another time-consuming device is sampled and dropped. The more desperate the effort to escape ennui the quicker it fails. So far as a large number of people are concerned, no competitor has yet been found to outdo the motion picture show in its ability to take care of the time which hangs so heavily on their hands. The cinema makes a bigger claim even than that. It will chase tedium away. But how? Hollywood studios are pouring out many films whose chief function seems to be to titillate the senses. In the process they often instil wrong values into the younger members of the community. Is this the way that leisure is going to be used? The question is urgent, because we are living in an age which is already discussing a five-day week seriously. The proper employment of leisure will then assume a social significance of the first order. This emphasis on proper leisure-time occupation does not mean that there is no place for diversions. Such a place must be readily apparent in any community life. The fault is that too many persons carry diversion beyond the border line of moderation. Like the transformation of thrift into miserliness, it then becomes pernicious. The restoration of a right relation in pleasures would give a larger place than is now taken to the pursuit of skill, recreation, and beauty. Those who cause these are fully employed because they are adding to experience and building up their usefulness.

AMERICA'S TRAGIC THE ACCOUNTANCY OF ARMAGEDDON BLUNDER

By THE OLD STAGER

BEHIND the veil past which we mortals cannot see, do the illustrious shades still interest themselves in our affairs? If what Shakespeare tells us is true, and the spirits of the wise sit in the clouds and mock us, one de-bonair ghost must just now be smiling with gentle irony. Ten years ago the late Earl of Balfour said, not less forcibly, what Mussolini said yesterday, and Mr. Chamberlain is saying to-day.

Mussolini, the architect of post-war Italy, shook the world's chancelleries with his imperious demand to end the blood feud, cease applying cash-register methods to history's supreme drama, and allow all question of war debts and reparations to pass into swift oblivion.

In the historic Balfour Note, which everybody names but few could now quote, one of the greatest statesmen of our generation pleaded eloquently for all that the Fascist Dictator bluntly called, and what is more, clearly predicted all the evils that have come upon the world at large through the rejection of his wise counsel.

After pointing out that Great Britain at that date in August 1922 was owed £3,400,000,000 in war debts, and owed America about a quarter of that sum, the Balfour Note stated that his Majesty's Government neither under-rated the evils of an unexampled situation nor were reluctant to make large sacrifices to end it.

We declared our readiness, ten years ago, if such a policy formed part of a satisfactory international agreement, to remit all debts due to us by our Allies or by Germany. Then the Balfour Note proceeds: "It is true that Great Britain is owed more than it owes, and that, if all inter-Allied War Debts were paid, the British Treasury would, on balance, be a large gainer by the transaction. But can the present world situation be looked at only from this narrow financial standpoint? It is true that many of the Allied and Associated Powers are, as between each other, creditors and debtors or both. But they were, and are, much more. They were partners in the greatest international effort ever made in the cause of freedom, and they are still partners in dealing with some at least of its results."

Longing for Normality.

After observing that these debts were incurred, and loans made, not for the separate advantage of particular States, but for a great purpose common to them all, Lord Balfour proceeded: "To generous minds it can never be agreeable, although for reasons of State it may perhaps be necessary, to regard the monetary aspect of this great event as a thing apart, to be torn, from its historical setting, and treated as no more than an ordinary commercial dealing between traders who borrow and capitalists who lend. The economic ills from which the world is suffering are due to many causes, moral and material, but amongst them must certainly be reckoned the weight of international indebtedness, with all its unhappy effects upon the credit and exchange, upon national production and international trade. The peoples of all countries long for a speedy return to the normal. But how can the normal be reached while conditions so abnormal are permitted to prevail? And how can these conditions be cured by any remedies that seem at present likely to be applied?"

If ever a voice from the grave sounded with prophetic truth, it is in the Balfour Note. The debt we owed America was not even contracted on our own account. The United States insisted that we should back the bill of loans to enable our own and America's European Allies to carry on the contest against Germany's challenge of military hegemony. To the letter of that bond we have been held by America. With accruing interest, we are pledged to repay almost twice the sum actually loaned to us on behalf of our Allies. And America stipulated that the repayment must be in American gold dollars. Against payment in kind, America erected insurmountable tariff walls. Every cent of the loaned billions was spent in America. Every cent has to go back again in gold.

Mussolini calls this a bargain of Shylock. Lord Balfour merely said a general sentiment would be "of more value to mankind." What the British statesman expressed with buttoned foil, Mussolini drove home with a bludgeon.

An Act of Oblivion. Lord Balfour was an amateur of the violin. His famous Note is couched in harmonic evidence. Mussolini plays the concertina and expresses himself in terms of that instrument. It is possible that less virtuosic methods are more likely to appeal to American susceptibilities. Not the least of the tragedies of the Great War is that its epic of mutual effort, its comradeship in arms should ultimately be regarded and humiliated into a vulgar haggling over red-lined accounts. The august silence of the historic battlefields, and the hushed aura of millions of headstones where sleep the heroes who felt rebuke the outrage on human idealism. It makes a gargoyles of the sun.

But it is futile to get angry with the United States the sentiment of enlightened citizenship has all along been fiercely in favour of an act of financial oblivion.

But America is a great democracy. And American democracy, with its complicated interests, adroitly played on by American dollar magnates and grafting politicians, is not sufficiently enlightened or ennobled to grasp the ethics of the amazing situation. It fails even to realise that its own selfish interest would be far better served by forgoing usury than by demanding its pound of flesh. Perhaps a new country, with a hybrid stock, lacks the sense of noblesse oblige that in great issues can and has inspired older nations of more authentic breeding.

It remains to see whether, at this intolerable crisis in the world's economics, the older wisdom and clearer prescience of Europe can cut the Gordian knot that for a decade has strangled both the new and the old world like a monstrous Laocoon group. If the familiar prayer, "Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors," makes no appeal to the modern descendants of the Pilgrim Fathers, then Europe's choice lies between firmly refusing to be bled to death or supinely waiting for America to make thumbs down signal to civilisation.

THE FRIENDS I LEFT BEHIND ME

A YOUNG HUSBAND'S PLEAINT.

THE honeymoon is over and done with, and I am rapidly becoming domesticated. There is one thing that is worrying me a lot. I am, definitely losing touch with all my old pals.

At that wild and wonderful party we had just before the great event took place we all swore we would never lose touch and that everything would be as it was before. How they must have smiled at me behind their hands. They came to the wedding—they cheered as we left the church, and I have recognised it as being good-bye.

Only the other night I got back from the office and felt I would like a cheery evening again with some of the old gang. I rang up four, funny, but not one of them was free. They were all doing something or going to parties to which I had not been asked, or said they were.

It was never like that in the old days, and I will admit I did feel a bit sore. I think I am exactly the same sort of fellow I was and yet Marriage should not change a man to that extent.

Now when I meet a pal in the street there is an air of restraint between us. Conversation drags, and we both pause trying to think of something to say. Then we murmur some inanities and pass on.

ANOTHER WIN FOR CAMBRIDGE In Varsity Tennis

GAIN VICTORY BY TWELVE RUBBERS
TO TWO

Cambridge University won the forty-eighth match against Oxford University on the hard courts at Finner's by twelve rubbers to four. When Cambridge had established their obvious superiority by winning twelve of the sixteen matches, the five remaining doubles were abandoned. Cambridge now lead by 24 victories to 14 in the series, with ten encounters drawn. In 1929 Oxford won by 12-9 after a sequence of four losing years and have not been successful since that date.

As has been the case in recent years C. E. Malfroy, the Light Blue captain, had a superabundance of talent from which to choose his team. There was available, besides himself, the two Indian Davis Cup players, C. R. D. Tuckey (a Trials choice) and two former junior champions of Great Britain, in addition to several other seniors who would have won their places in any normal year. Malfroy finally selected Tuckey and Freshwater to fill his singles team, the latter being preferred over one or two seniors in residence. He is only in his first year and doubtless gained experience in the Varsity match which should be of value to Cambridge in future years. For the doubles Malfroy, who paired with Gandar Dower last year, took Charanjiva as his partner, Nathall and Tuckey remaining together, while half Blues were awarded to J. L. H. Fletcher and H. D. Mackinnon.

OXFORD UP AGAINST IT.

Oxford realised that they were up against a stiff proposition in facing such a formidable side but were by no means disheartened and have shown considerable improvement in their later matches. Tinker and Frank especially have been doing well and they confirmed these good impressions by obtaining three rubbers between them in the singles on Saturday. Only three old Blues were available and the team was filled by Vanderspar and two colonials, Frank and Narain. E. J. David, brother of H. F. David, won a place in the doubles with de Saram, Irons and Frank being another new partnership, while Finnigan paired with Tinker as first pair.

The best match of the morning was that in which Tinker beat Malfroy. Considering the state of the court and the poor light the play was surprisingly good. The New Zealander soon held a lead of 5-2 by means of a forecourt game. Tinker, realising that his passing shots held no terrors for his opponent, changed his game in the nick of time and driving Malfroy to the back of the court by lobs and seeking the net himself he made up the lost ground and won five consecutive games for set, and the match at 7-5 6-4. Tinker was at the top of his form against Madan Mohan in his second match and attacked strongly throughout from the net to win by 6-3 6-2, a reversal of last year's encounter between the two. The Indian player was not happy on the hard courts and seemed to find difficulty in making a winning drive against his agile opponent. G. C. Frank was the only other Oxford man to secure a singles victory and he ought to have won both his rubbers for in his second match he led Charanjiva by 5-2 in the final set and held four match-points before losing in the twelfth game.

INDIAN'S FINE PLAY.

APRIL THE FIFTH'S

AGAINST TIME

HALF MINUTE
SHORT OF BEING A NON-RUNNER

OWNER ALMOST MAD

Mr. Tom Walls has disclosed how nearly he came to losing the Derby, which is far and away the most remarkable story of one of the most remarkable Derbies that have ever been run.

It was only by a matter of 30 seconds or so that his cousin, Mr. Sidney Walls, who assists him in training his horses, was able to get to the weighing room in time to declare him a runner.

Mr. Walls' stables are less than a mile from the paddock, but knowing what the traffic is like on Derby Day he decided to send the colt in a motor-horse box instead of risking his being upset by walking through the line of cars.

April the Fifth left his stables with plenty of time to spare, but the traffic congestion was so great that he was hung up on the road.

A MATTER OF SECONDS.

Mr. Sidney Walls waited and waited, and then realised that there was only half an hour to go before the race.

He left the horse box and ran to the weighing room, arriving only just in time to put the declaration in. Then he returned and found the horse box still hung up in the traffic.

His only chance of ever getting to the paddock in time was to take the colt out of the box and walk him. Which he did. In and out of the traffic with all its distractions, April the Fifth was led. It says a great deal for his equable temperament that he was never upset.

Meanwhile Mr. Walls was waiting in the paddock for the horse, almost mad with anxiety.

Again it was by a margin of seconds that he was saddled, in time and sent out to take his place in the parade—and win the Derby.

PRINCE PLAYS FOR TWO SIDES

WINS GOLF MATCH
AS ADMIRAL AND GENERAL

The Prince of Wales played on both sides in the fourth annual golf match between Admirals and Generals at Camberly Heath. The Admirals won by 18 matches to 12.

Qualified by his rank of Lieutenant, the Prince assisted the Generals in the morning and won his match against Rear Admiral F. M. Austin by four and two. For the afternoon foursomes the Prince, in his capacity of Vice-Admiral, joined the other side, and for the Admirals helped to gain a point.

The Prince was partnered by Rear Admiral B. V. Brooke, against Lieutenant-General Sir W. Furse and Major-General W. Pitt-Taylor, who were defeated by six and five. The Prince and his partner won three of the first four holes and turned three up before winning at the thirteenth hole.

The Prince had earlier been in great form in his singles match with Rear Admiral Austin. During the day he was concerned in gaining a win for each side in turn.

Swordsmanship.

The O.U. Fencing Club's specialists (if such a word may be allowed) scored a decisive win over Cambridge the other day, reversing the defeat that their other swordsmen had received earlier in the year. They, too, have a subordinate club on the lines of the Authentics, Greyhounds, &c., but they have departed from precedent by adopting a human name, albeit an uncompromising one. They call themselves the O.U. Assassins, and in a match at Oxford on Saturday defeated Westminster School by 16-11.

At the end of this week there is the Varsity Lawn Tennis match, to be held this year at Cambridge. We seem to be up against a fairly stiff proposition, but are by no means downhearted. Tinker and de Saram are going great guns in the Singles, while Frank and Irons have shown themselves a very formidable Doubles pair. It is to be hoped that Cambridge is a drier place at the moment than Oxford, for, were the match to be staged here, I do not know where we could find a square foot of dry grass to offer them.

OVERHEAD AT OXFORD BUMPING SEASON

MIXED CRICKET: A FINE HALFMILER:
SWORDSMANSHIP

Oxford, May 31.

Oxford is now very nearly an island, and the rivers are still rising. Not only are they flooded, but most of the roads as well. It was touch and go whether the Eights would be continued on Monday, and, though the races did take place, on Monday night the uncertainty still remained about Tuesday's programme.

So far there has been a very large number of bumps. Last year the total came to 71. After the racing on Monday night this number had already been passed, 73 bumps being recorded in the first four nights' racing.

Magdalen wasted no time in going Head. The first two nights were sufficient for them to go up from third place. Now that they have reached the top, it will be a difficult task to dislodge them. They have been rowing with a very steady stroke, which is just suited for a head of the River boat.

Indians in the Parks.

Cricket this last week has been practically, if not literally, a wash-out. We were very sorry indeed that the weather was so bad for the All-India match. The Indians did, it is true, give us a delightful batting treat, but we had been looking forward to seeing them on the hard wickets to which they are accustomed at home. But although the wicket was soft, Wazir Ali made an excellent 100, and Nissar's fast bowling, which was the first they had experienced this season, proved too much for our batsmen. Barlow again showed what a fine bowler he is, and topped Oxford's bowling averages.

Melville continues to make progress after his accident last week, and we are all glad to hear that he will be fit to come back into the side again when the Varsity goes on tour after term. Oldfield has also been in the wars, but what was once thought to be a splintered shoulder-bone turned out to be only a bad bruise. That is unfortunate enough in itself, but it is not so serious as report first rumoured.

Mixed Cricket.

There seems to have been little other cricket during this last week, except for a match between the Magdalen "Medicos" and an XI, culled from the Ladies' Colleges. A most delightful match it was, too. In it brother and sister met on the cricket-field in friendly rivalry, and if brother was unchivalrous enough to make 20 not out, sister showed her prowess by taking a goodly crop of wickets. The game came to an exciting finish, for the male Magdalen Medicos, captained by the Dean of the Medical School, won by one run.

On Friday and Saturday our athletes showed their worth on the track at Motspur Park in the Universities' Athletic Union Championships. This was the first year that either Oxford or Cambridge had competed. The U.A.U. authorities had paid us the compliment of saying that they would appreciate the entry of a team from Oxford, and we did the best we could to repay that compliment by sending the strongest team that "Schools" and other circumstances would allow.

Cornes As Usual.

The team entered as "Oxford Centipedes"—the intra-University Club that corresponds to the Authentics, Greyhounds, Centaurs, Penguins, and other fauna—and won by a comfortable margin. Once again Cornes was our "star." He won the half-mile as he liked, and 1½ hours later the mile also. In the latter the finish was actually a very close one, but Cornes was running well within himself, and could have won by several yards instead of rather less than one. He was hoping, however, that by hanging back he could help Lovebeck along into second place. But it was not to be, for Helps, of Birmingham University, the winner in the two previous years, bent him by inches, and thereby lowered his previous best time for this mile by a good ten seconds.

The O.U.A.C. are busy now getting ready for their stiffest match of the term, against the A.A.A. team. This match takes place on Thursday this week, and a large crowd is expected down at Ilfey-road, to see us battling with the champions that have been chosen to compete against us.

SIAMESE AIRMAN ARRIVES.

ADVENTUROUS FLIGHT FROM BANGKOK

A life's ambition was fulfilled yesterday when Luan Phongsobhon, young Siamese aviator, completed his first long distance flight, having flown from his native Bangkok and arrived at Hongkong. He landed safely on the Kai Tak field at 2.30 in the afternoon. Among those who met him was Mr. J. T. Bagram, the Consul for Siam in Hongkong.

Trained at Parks Air College, in East St. Louis, in the State of Illinois, U.S.A., whither he went two years ago from Siam, Luan Phongsobhon had early on conceived the project, and when he returned to Siam, succeeded in interesting a number of friends and members of the general public. They subscribed the necessary funds, with which he acquired a Traveller Company's machine, the same kind in which he had flown for some time while in the States, named her "Miss Siam" and embarked on the adventurous flight.

He left Bangkok on Sunday, June 19, with the blessing of the City authorities, and made his first landing—a forced one caused by a heavy rainstorm—at Rolet, after having been four hours aloft. The guest of the local Siamese Governor, he slept in the latter's palace until the following morning, when he resumed his flight. Thakhek, in Laos, French Indo-China, was reached at 1 p.m. the same day. Weather conditions became so bad that for three days, in spite of repeated attempts, he was unable to surmount the great Annamite Range which hereabouts shoots up to a height of more than 1,000 feet.

Forced to Make Detour.

Eventually after three or four futile endeavours, he decided to make a detour from the direct route, and he followed the automobile highway to Nape. There is a landing field at Nape, but the aviator preferred not to make use of it, but to continue on his flight, handicapped as it was by fog and rain. Somehow or other he managed to nose his way successfully along the contour of the river valley, and arrived at Vinh. The landing field was some two miles from the town, but there is poor provision for an airman in the way of essentials. Luan Phongsobhon looked into his tank, and decided he had enough "gas" as he puts it, to make the next hop of 200 miles to Hanoi. He arrived there on a very bare margin and was warmly welcomed by the French military, who saw to it that he had all he wanted, in the replenishment of supplies.

Hindered by Fog.

Next morning, Friday, the aviator set out for Monay on the Kwangsi border, but bad weather conditions still followed him there, and he was unable to locate the town. By turning south-eastward, he avoided the belt of fog, and reached Yokshan, thence to Loung Moun, which he could easily pick up on account of its location at the head of a bay shown clearly on his map. Not for the first time, the single engine with which the machine is equipped began to develop faults, and a forced landing became imminent. Mistaking a belt of quagmire along the seashore for sand, he descended and found himself firmly stuck. The machine would have nosed over under the circumstances, but fortunately it was provided with broad balloon tyres, and ran long before it became firmly embedded.

The wheels were half-in when the aviator went for assistance, which meant that he had to leave the machine to take care of itself while he trudged over difficult ground for over an hour before he reached Loung Moun.

Assistance of course was available, but at such an exorbitant cost that it made Luan proceed about the task in a cautious manner. Eventually he secured some 20 coolies and led them back to the machine. He found it the subject of the attention of thousands who had gathered quickly from the countryside to have what was probably their first view of an aeroplane. The sightseers had not only inspected it, but had also pawed it about, with the result that it was covered all over with mud marks.

Embedded In Mud.

The mud in which the machine was embedded, (it having now sunk down to the level of the fuselage) was of a quality very resilient, and resisted the efforts of the twenty stalwart labourers to tow the machine out. Another 15 men were thrown into the task, without any improvement in the situation. The tide was rising alarmingly and soon it became evident that the machine would be inundated by water. In these dire circumstances the airman did not lack resourcefulness. He had two sampans pushed under the fuselage, and with these acting as pontoons, giving the necessary uplift on the wheels and the other under the tail, successful-

FUNERAL OF THE LATE MR LEE YOOK-QUAN.

LARGE CROWD AT CEREMONY YESTERDAY

The funeral took place yesterday afternoon of the late Mr. Alfred Lee Yook-quan, Chinese agent in the local office of the Canadian Pacific Co., who passed away on Friday at the French Hospital after a brief illness, suffering from an acute attack of typhoid fever. His death at the early age of 36 was a shock to his relatives and his many friends in Hongkong with whom he was most popular.

The deceased is survived by five younger brothers, including Messrs. Lee Yook-lam, Lee Yook-tong (who succeeds the deceased in the Canadian Pacific) Lee Yook-choy, and Lee Yook-man, and six sisters. The late Mr. Lee also left a wife and a young son. The deceased received his early education in the Canton Christian College and later acted as the Chinese agent of the Canadian Pacific in Victoria, B.C. He succeeded to his father as the Hongkong Chinese agent in 1924.

The popularity of the deceased was manifest by the big gathering of prominent European and Chinese residents, including many officials of the Canadian Pacific Steamships, Limited, and Canadian Pacific Railway Company's Hongkong office, at the funeral yesterday. Among those present were Messrs. Allan Cameron, Oriental Manager of the C.P.R., L. E. N. Ryan, Major Duclos, Messrs. W. J. Ridford, Billimoria, A. M. Parker, C. Pryce, E. Stone, B. Gutierrez, C. Thwaites, G. R. Payne, W. H. Peters, J. MacKenzie, T. C. Monaghan, Leung Yuen-woo, H. Shung-mok, H. M. Siu, Cheng Kien-to, Y. N. Chau, K. L. Chau, and many others.

Numerous wreaths from friends, local social and sports clubs with which the deceased were formerly connected, relatives and members of the Canadian Pacific staffs, were sent to the funeral.

MOTOR CAR MIX UP

FOUR VEHICLES CRASH IN GARDEN ROAD

A taxi, a public car and two private cars were involved in a series of crashes which occurred at Garden Road about 10 a.m. yesterday.

Details are scant regarding how the first two vehicles, private car No. 188 and public car No. 264, collided, but it appears that after the mishap, which took place opposite the Helena May Institute, the private car was flung astride the roadway.

The two other vehicles, a Star taxi No. 43, and a private car No. 670, are said to have been proceeding from opposite directions along Garden Road, and approached the first two vehicles. As they simultaneously made to clear the obstacle, both averting to the right side of the road, they collided head on. The next instant all four vehicles piled together, but the remarkable feature was that none of the drivers or passengers of any of the vehicles was injured seriously, although slight cuts from smashed wind-screens were sustained. All four cars were damaged.

The incident was reported to the Police by the four drivers concerned.

The League of Nations Commission, consisting of Lord Lytton's party, will leave for Japan on Tuesday next, making the journey via Mukden, Antung and Korea.—Reuter.

ly moved the machine out into the bay and landed it on an island.

"Hop" To Hongkong.

Back again on terra firma, the machine was extensively overhauled, and the airman again resumed his flight, on this occasion heading for Fort Bayard Kwangchowwan, where he landed the same evening. The following morning yesterday, after breakfast with the French Administrator of Kwangchowwan, he set out on the last leg for Hongkong. Again fog intervened, and all along the coast the airman was forced to fly not higher than 300 or 400 feet above sea level. However, he duly arrived at Hongkong in the afternoon.

Luan Phongsobhon when interviewed at his apartment in Gloucester Building, told a press representative that he intended to stay here for three days before flying to Canton. From Canton he plans to make a return flight to Bangkok, following a route varying somewhat from his original one.

The machine, fitted with a Curtiss OX5 engine developing 90 h.p., and giving it a cruising speed of only 70 miles an hour, is a second-hand one, of comparatively low power. In view of this, and of the conditions which he had to overcome, the airman's performance is a really splendid one, and he is to be heartily congratulated.

DENTIST'S CASE CONCLUDED.

CONVICTION CONFIRMED IN RECENT CASE

Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy on Saturday, concluded the re-hearing of the case in which Kwong Cheuk-wah, described as an assistant to the late James Mak, was charged with unlawfully holding himself out as a dentist.

For the defence, Mr. Hin-shing Lo applied for a reduction of the fine of $200 inflicted, at the original hearing on a conviction, his application being on the ground that certain facts favourable to the defendant, had not been fully explained.

Quoting legal authorities, Mr. Lo, on the re-opened proceedings, argued that defendant was an "innocent agent" bound by a contract with his deceased employer, to produce the latter's business card, although the latter might not have the qualifications for practice as required by law. While it was admitted that the Police officer who called for a consultation might have been deceived by the card, it was the case for the defendant that he did not hold himself out as a dentist on his own.

Referring to the death of a British bluejacket from septicaemia, alleged by the prosecution to have resulted as an after effect of dental treatment by the late James Mak, but which did not form part of their case, Mr. Lo anticipated that he would have had no difficulty in disposing of such a charge if it had been included.

After listening to a very long speech by Counsel, his Worship confirmed the previous conviction, but reduced the fine to $100.

As if every lineament of his splendid young face weren't burnt on her brain. Very nice, indeed!

She forced herself to say with desperate calm. "He's to be married, I believe?"

"I don't know about that," said Waring with infinite carelessness. "All the girls in that crowd are after him, I suppose. He has everything—money—looks—nice disposition. I've heard he's a bit wild."

His voice dropped confidentially. "Now you would be exactly the sort of girl for that young man. You have brains and you're rather easy on the eyes yourself."

She moved her shoulders impatiently. Why couldn't the man leave? Her voice sounded heavy as she said. "Susan said."

"Ah, but you see, he doesn't want me."

She would have given a great deal to have the words back. In a panic she wondered if she had given herself away.

TREASURE SHARE

TUG MASTER'S CLAIM FOR EGYPT'S GOLD

London, June 26.
 There was a dramatic development in the salvage of the sunken Egypt's treasure when the Italian salvage-ship Artiglio, which after many vain attempts, succeeded in reaching the vessel last week arrived at Plymouth with gold and silver from the Egypt, valued at $187,000.

The cargo was "arrested" and the holds sealed up, under instructions from the Admiralty Marshal. It is understood that the action is a sequel to a claim filed by Captain Jean Davy, formerly captain of the Breast tug, Iroise, for a share in the gold, on the grounds that he was the first to locate the wreck.—Reuter.

Old War Horses.

[To the Editor, Hongkong Telegraph.]

Sir—I enclose herewith an extract from the Sunday Sketch and Sunday News of May 22nd (as possibly many ex-Servicemen in Hongkong may not have seen this account) which proves clearly that the horrible traffic in old war horses abroad still continues. Many of your ex-Servicemen readers will I feel sure wish to come to the aid of their old war time pals, now in dire need, and the address to which subscriptions may be sent is given in the enclosed extract, or, if they prefer, I shall be glad to send any donations on their behalf or on behalf of any other animal lovers who wish to assist in stamping out this dreadful traffic if they will send such donations to me at No. 6, Leighton Hill or at the Colonial Secretariat.

D. DAVIES.
Enclosures.

Where to send.—A correspondent who signs himself "A Working Man" asks where he can "send a few shillings to stop cruelty of this kind." The answer is Lady Doris Gunton, 16 Smethwicke-crecent, London, W.2.

Most of these old friends of our soldiers are in Egypt—over 25 years old and worked chiefly at night as their condition would not be tolerated by the Police.

A Pitiful Tale.—Some 500 are still left, and the Society has to pay £6 a piece for them. In order that their owners shall not purposely starve and ill-treat them the Society's representative in Cairo writes me that more is paid for a decently treated animal. Here is an extract:—

"In the last 400 horses we have not seen a single sound animal—very many in the last stages of decrepitude, pain and starvation, but all working."

Unprintable Picture.—At the top of this page (right) I have reproduced a photograph sent me from Egypt. It is the least disgusting of a batch of seven, and I have in my possession one photograph that is so nauseating that it could not possibly be reproduced in any English newspaper.

It shows two animals that the Society is about to destroy after purchase.

A Kinder Fate.—Well, there it is; a nasty blot on the copy-book of a nation that professes to love animals. So disgustingly have we behaved that it would have been far better had they all been killed doing their bit.

LAUSANNE SCHEME FAVOURED.

EUROPEAN FEDERATION TO BE DISCUSSED

Lausanne, June 26. The glitzy scheme for a European Federation, the idea of which was recently mooted by Herr Von Bulow, is likely to hold the centre of the stage next week. It is understood that M. Herriot and Herr Von Papen dealt with the scheme in yesterday's discussions, and that Mr. Ramsay MacDonald expressed himself in favour of such a development. The Italian delegation to-day plumed for the cancellation of war debts and reparations.—Reuter.

Franco-German Talks.

London, June 24. The conversations at Lausanne between the French Prime Minister, M. Herriot, and the German Chancellor, Herr Von Papen, for which the ground had been prepared by Mr. Ramsay MacDonald's negotiations yesterday with M. Herriot, began as arranged this morning.

The two statesmen were alone during the early part of the interview and the later conversations were continued with their ministerial colleagues and experts in attendance.

A communique later issued stated that after the German Finance Minister, Herr Von Krosigk, had presented a detailed statement of the economic and financial position of Germany the meeting adjourned. The conversations were resumed this evening.

Hoover Plan.

The Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon, attended a meeting at the House of Commons, when it is understood President Hoover's disarmament proposals were under consideration.

On his return to Geneva Sir John Simon will enter upon consultations with the French and United States delegates.

The French War Minister, M. Paul Boncour, is at present in Paris consulting his colleagues, but both the Ministers will return to Geneva during the week-end and a Conference will take place on Monday.—British Wireless.

Some Opposition.

Geneva, June 26. Mr. Hugh Gibson, who is carrying on conversations with various delegations here and personally advocating the Hoover plan, is understood to have encountered continued opposition from the Japanese, who have now finished their examination of the proposals and argue that the Hoover plan is inequitable and unacceptable to them, particularly in respect to the suggestion as regards land forces, battleships and submarines.—Reuter's Special Service.

Mr. Baldwin's View.

London, June 26. Mr. Stanley Baldwin sounded a prophetic note in a cheering speech he made at Sheffield, when he reiterated that the British

HAPPY OMEN FOR DISARMAMENT.

THE ANGLO-AMERICAN RELATIONSHIP

London, June 26. The British reception of President Hoover's proposals in connexion with the Disarmament Conference has occasioned the exchange of cordial messages between Mr. H. L. Stimson, Secretary of State, and Sir John Simon. The former expressed his earnest thanks for the spirit of sympathetic consideration in which Sir John Simon discussed the proposals, and trusted that the Anglo-American delegations would be able to work jointly to contribute to their fulfilment.

Mr. Stimson said: "I wish to thank you most earnestly for the spirit of sympathetic consideration in which you have discussed the President's proposals, and I trust that our two delegations will be able jointly to contribute to their fulfilment. My appreciation is all the greater in view of the shortness of time in which circumstances have necessitated your consideration of these most important questions."

Reciprocal Wishes.

Sir John Simon in reply reciprocated the wish for continued Anglo-American co-operation, and said, "I am delighted to receive your cordial message which I am communicating to my colleagues. The spirit and purpose of President Hoover's declaration are deeply appreciated in Britain, and we shall do our utmost, by seeking the largest possible measure of agreement amongst all states represented at the Disarmament Conference, to promote the acceptance of concrete proposals covering the whole field."—Reuter and British Wireless.

SHANGHAI TO HAVE BEAM WIRELESS.

GREAT BRITAIN TO BENEFIT IN PARTICULAR

Nanking, June 25. An agreement has been signed between the Ministry of Communications, the Imperial International Communications Company and Marconis for the installation on the outskirts of Shanghai of beam wireless for international radio-telegraph communication.

The new source of communication applies particularly to Great Britain. Marconis are supplying the equipment, including the radio-telephony apparatus.—Reuter.

policy was to make a clean sweep of the old debts.

He said that both masters and men in Britain were achieving miracles in working together, and when world trade improved, Britain would be first off the mark and would lead the world again.—Reuter Special Service.

THE NEW REGIME IN SIAM

OLD GOVERNMENT'S DISSATISFACTION

Singapore, June 25. The revolt in Siam is due to the people being dissatisfied with the Government and oppressed by taxes.

The Regent has signed a communique issued by the New Peoples' Party recognising the new monarchical government. If the King does not sign, a Republic will be established.

A cruiser has been sent to Huahin to bring back the King to Bangkok. The Princes have been taken to the Throne Hall under "arrest" by Army units.

The city is most excited but there has been no violence. There has been only one casualty, the commander of the First Army Corps being shot whilst resisting arrest.

Apparently the King has retained the constitutional monarchy. The streets in the Grand Palace district are full of armoured cars, tanks and machine-guns. The future government will be by Parliament.

The Siamese Consul General at Singapore, in an interview said: "The revolt is entirely unexpected. You may rest assured there will be no international complications. The interests of other nations and the lives of their nationals will be safeguarded by the new Government, which will without doubt honour all the commitments of its predecessors."—Our Own Correspondent.

New Regime Anticipated.

New York, June 25. Prince Subhasvati, brother of the Queen of Siam, who is staying incognito in New York studying the police system was surprised and incredulous when Reuter informed him of the revolution.

He declared, "The Royal family has been discussing the establishment of a constitutional monarchy for more than a year, but delayed a definite decision."

He added that he did not believe their Majesties would be harmed.—Reuter's American Service.

DEATH SENTENCE.

MURDERER OF BRITISH OFFICIAL PAYS PENALTY

Calcutta, June 25. Predyotkumar Battacharji, the murderer of Mr. Douglas, has been sentenced to death.—Reuter.

Crime Recalled. Mr. Douglas was the District Magistrate at Midnapore who while attending a District Board meeting on April 30, was fired upon and seriously injured by a Bengali youth. He later died of his injury. The youth escaped but thirty persons were arrested on May 2 in connexion with the murder, and investigation led to the identification of the person who fired the fatal shot.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney,

The following play came up in the national masters' contract pair championship. Forcing partner to ruff, even though the declarer can over-ruff is an unusual play, but is the only play that will stop game in this hand.

The Bidding

South opened with one spade. West bid two diamonds, North bid two hearts. East passed and South bid three spades. West passed and North went to four spades.

The Play.

West opened the king of diamonds. When holding the ace, king and queen, the king is led followed by the queen and the ace if played on the third round. On West's king North, the dummy, played the deuce. East the nine and South, the declarer, played the five of diamonds. West continued with the queen of diamonds and East played the eight, completing his echo showing out, and requesting his partner to continue diamonds. The ace was then led by West, East discarding the deuce of hearts, discarding a heart lead, and South, the declarer, followed with the jack.

West held four spades to the ten spot and if the declarer happened to hold the ace, king, jack, West could make no spade tricks. Of course if East held one of the honours, then West's ten would make. A club or a heart lead would give the declarer an easy game but West decided to try and find at least the seven of spades in his partner's hand and returned the seven of diamonds. A small club is discarded from dummy and East trumped with the seven of spades which forced South, the declarer, to over-trump with the jack of spades. This play established the ten spot for West, and while the declarer did cash all of the clubs and all of the hearts he was forced to lose one spade trick and this set his contract one trick.

BAVARIA STICKS TO BAN ON NAZI UNIFORMS

Berlin, June 25.
Bavaria has revolted against the Reich and has definitely refused to raise the ban on the wearing of Nazi uniforms.

The Premier held a meeting of the Diet this morning at which he announced the decision, and declared that Bavaria would strictly adhere to its constitution and law, and would take steps to defend its rights to maintain law and order in Bavaria. His speech was received with loud cheers.

The Diet, without discussion, passed a resolution supporting the Government policy, all parties, except the Communists, voting for it.

The Nazis were absent as they were expelled last week for wearing their uniforms.

The Bavarian Premier has sent a letter to President von Hindenburg emphasizing Bavaria's loyalty to the Reich and explaining that its refusal to raise the ban on the Nazi uniforms is based on legal grounds.—Reuter.

MAN HUNTERS

BY MABEL McELLIOTT

Susan, Carey, 19, pretty and an orphan, lives with her Aunt Jessie in Chicago, and takes a secretarial course at a downtown business school. There she meets Bob Dunbar, heir to a fortune. She is employed as secretary for Ernest Heath, architect, Jack Waring, Heath's assistant, tries to start a flirtation but is rebuffed. Mrs. Heath sends Susan, then Lampton, a young musician, takes her to a studio party but she does not enjoy it. Dunbar takes her to lunch and tells her he is going abroad. Susan's aunt departs on a visit and Rose Milton stays with Susan. Lonely, the girl goes strutting with Waring and Ray Flannery, employed in the next office. Waring kisses her and she never goes with him again. She and Lampton make Susan to marry him and she refuses his proposal. Waring apologizes for his childish behavior. In a newspaper gossip column, Susan reads that Bob Dunbar is to be married. She works overtime at the office and chatters the first time realizes how young and charming she is. When he becomes ill she goes to his country home to take dictation.

"You've got plenty of time, miss." That was Simon, grinning at Susan and helping her out of the car. "Thanks. You did that beautifully," she told him, feeling conspicuous with her armful of flowers. She went to sit on one of the benches outside of the station. Idly she noticed a girl in white flannel with a great Russian wolfhound on a leash, pacing up and down. There was something familiar about the set of the beautiful little head under the rakish, white hat. When the girl turned her profile Susan knew her at once. It was Denise Ackroyd. Deliberately Susan looked the other way. She could not quite forgive that girl for having interrupted her and Bob Dunbar at luncheon. The old pain began to throb in her breast.

"I was so happy a moment ago," Susan thought resentfully. "Why need she remind me of him? I was trying to forget."

Irresistibly her eyes were drawn back to the straight, graceful figure. At that moment Denise's gaze met hers. She bowed frigidly and moved away.

"I wonder if her family know she goes around with the Strinskys' crowd?" Susan reflected, thinking disdainfully of that sordid menage to which Bob had introduced her. She buried her face in the roses as the train roared into the station.

Susan found herself a seat in an almost empty coach and through the window caught a glimpse of Denise casually embracing a tall, blonde young man, carrying golf sticks. Unaccountably her heart lightened. In the back of her mind all this time, unacknowledged, had lain the fear that Denise might be the unnamed charmer in Bob's life. It did not seem so hard to lose him to someone she had never seen. A real flesh and blood rival was more terrifying. "Perhaps it isn't true," Susan thought.

She wondered where Bob was and when he was returning. How strange that he had not even written her a line! She had watched the mails day after day until pride had come to her rescue. Then the dream had died and more than one night her pillow had been wet with tears.

She dismissed all this now resolutely and began to think of other things—the house she had just left and her employer with his lean, ascetic face and quizzical eyes. Surely Ernest Heath had everything to be desired—wealth, position, friends and that beautiful house and garden. She could hear herself describing the place in detail to Rose or to Aunt Jessie. Aunt Jessie would sniff at what she called "fol-de-rols," but she would be impressed just the same.

However, it was Ray Flannery who first heard the story of Susan's visit.

"My eye! Flowers, where are you going with that girl?" Ray shrieked, meeting Susan in the hall. Susan turned a blooming face. "Aren't they lovely?" She asked. "They're from Mr. Heath's garden. I had to go out there to take dictation. He's laid up."

Ray whistled softly. "Getting a stand in?" She inquired. "I'll bet the missus didn't pick those for you."

Susan said with dignity, "One of the maids did. Mr. Heath told her to."

Ray whistled. "One of the maids! My hat! How many do they have and what kind of a place is it?"

"It's—oh, it's beautiful!" said Susan, eyes shining. "It's out in the real country. There's every kind of bird you ever heard of—"

Ray chuckled. "Wouldn't you think they'd want to live on Lake Shore drive or somewhere like that? Wouldn't you think they'd have a duplex up near the park? How anybody can see that country stuff gets me!"

"It's lovely," Susan told her. "You couldn't have a garden if you lived in a duplex apartment."

"Who wants a garden?" Ray demanded. She had followed Susan into the office and draped herself gracefully over a partition. "Me. I'd have a standing order at a florist's for orchids or maybe gardenias."

Jack Waring interrupted them. Sounds like your line, sugar," he said impudently. Ray made a saucy face at him.

"You know me, old thing!" To Susan she said, "See you later. Had your lunch?"

Heathly Susan said, "I've got so much work to do I'm going to have a sandwich sent up." Ray departed. Curiously Waring gazed at Susan.

"The boss must have been feeling better," he hazarded. Susan returned his look with utmost candor.

"No, he wasn't really," she explained. "He looks miserable. But he was so nice. He told Simon to wait and had all these gathered for me. It was sweet of him, wasn't it?"

Waring agreed gravely, keeping his thoughts to himself. He had learned several things in the last month or so about this girl. Cynic that he was, he had discovered that Susan was to be taken at her face value. What she said she meant and what she seemed to be was. It was startling but true. Jack Waring had not understood that at first. Now he was a little ashamed of his earlier attitude.

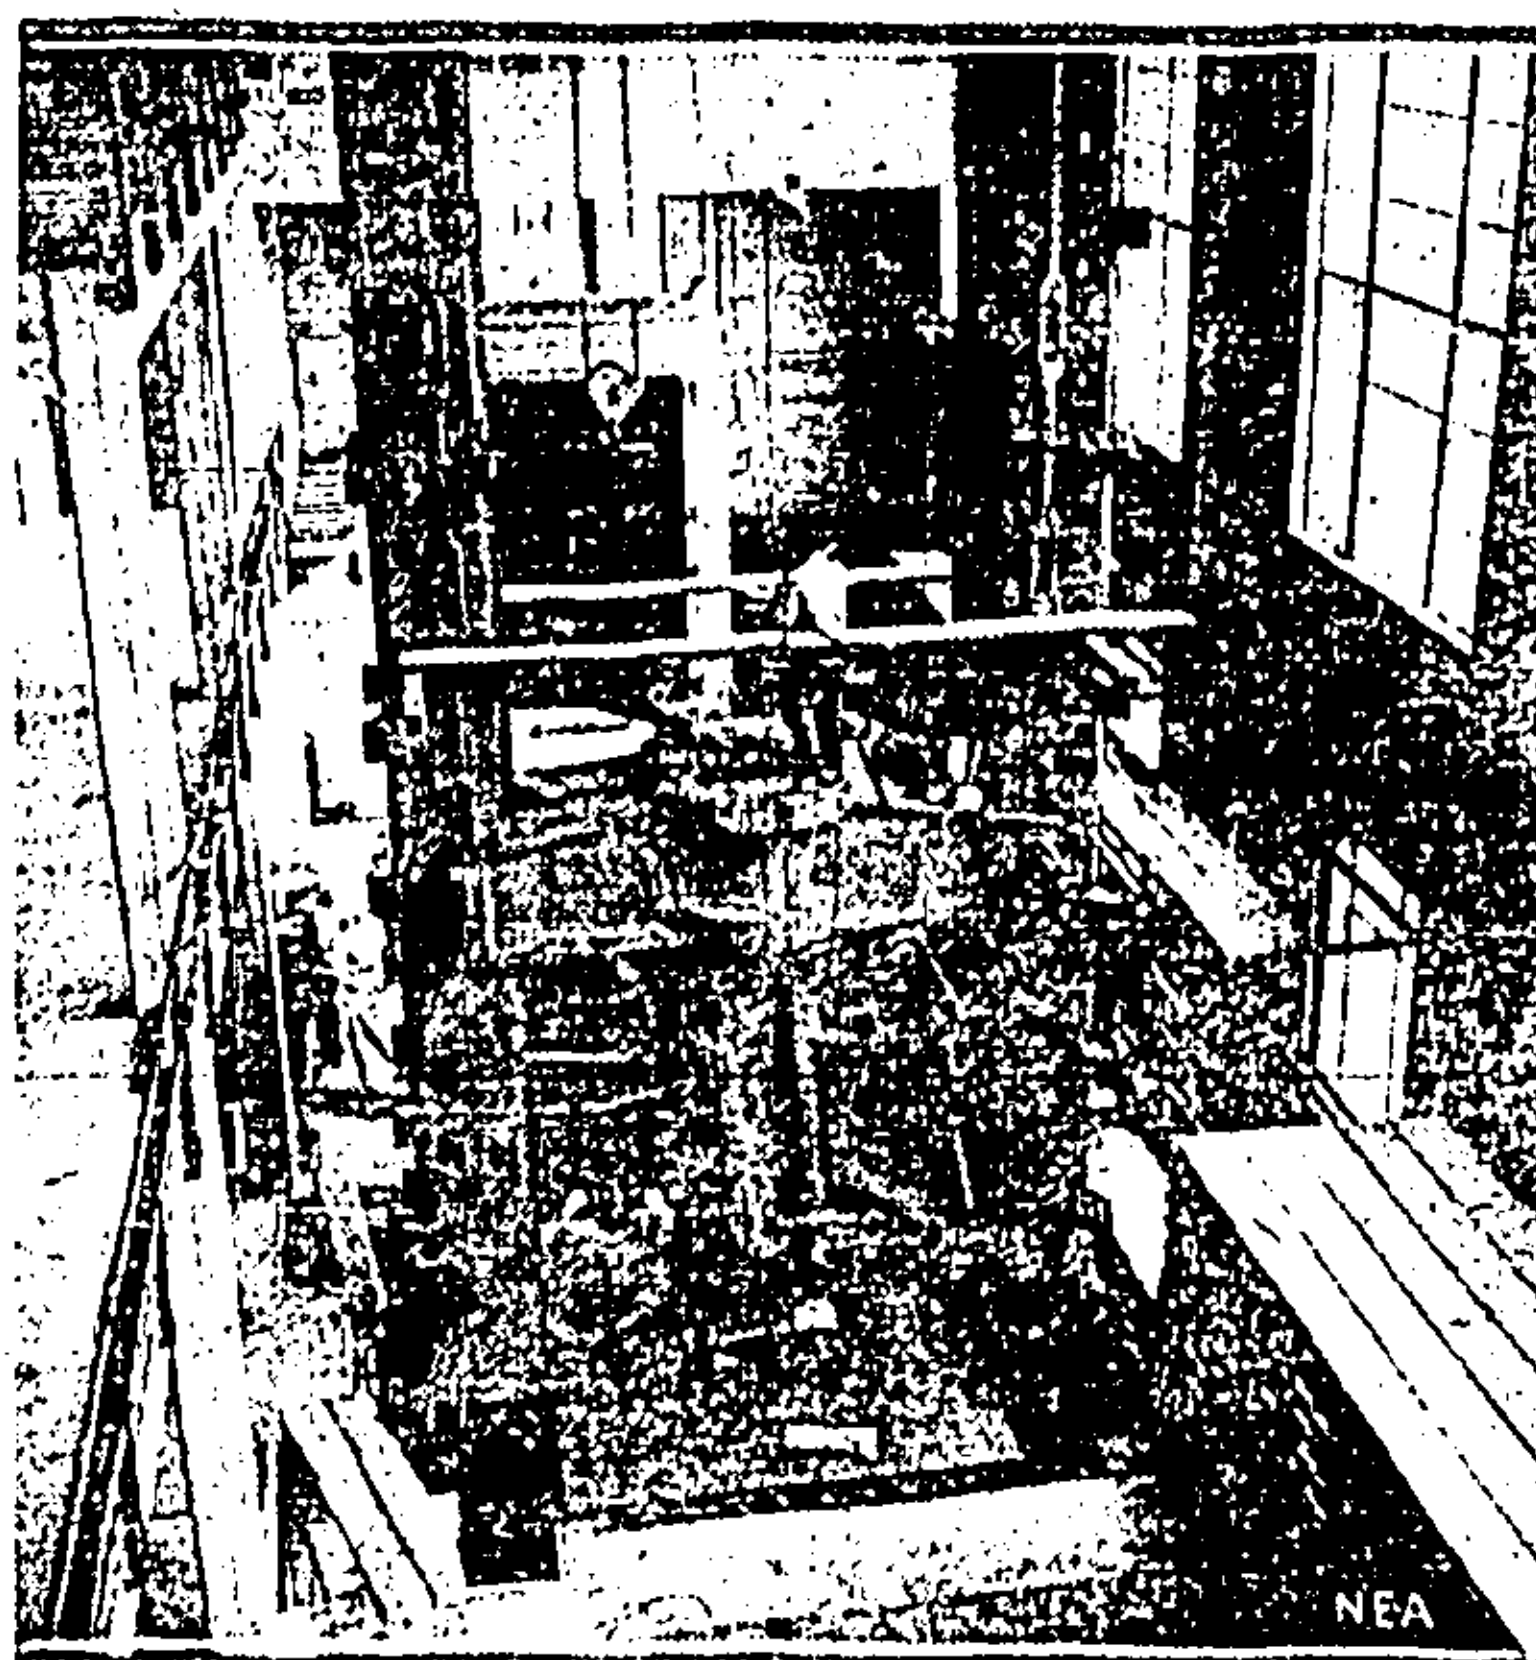

Susan began to wish Waring would go. He made her nervous, sitting there drumming on the desk with his well-manicured fingers and eyeing her with that speculative gaze. She put away her hat,

Spectacular fireworks, set off from the tall towers of the new George Washington Bridge, were New York's nocturnal tribute to the memory of the first President. Note how this elaborate display is reflected in the quiet waters of the historic Hudson River.

The rattle of the milk-wagon wheels no longer will arouse Boston folk from their slumbers at untimely hours. The wagons have been equipped with pneumatic tyres, as this picture shows. It's an achievement of the city's anti-noise campaign.

Here is one of the gigantic installations in the University of California's engineering research laboratory, which will be used in concrete research work in connexion with the Hoover Dam construction. thrust the flowers into an umbrella stand and slipped open her desk. The man smiled wryly, recognizing signs of dismissal.

"Sorry you're so busy," he said smoothly. "I wanted to tell you about meeting an old friend of yours."

Susan had slipped a sheet of paper into the machine. Her eyes, intent on her work, raised to his for an instant.

"Old friend of mine? Really? Who is he?"

"Listen to her," the man teased. "For all you know it might have been a girl."

Susan laughed, embarrassed. "I know," she said, "but there was something about the way you said it that made me think—"

"It's all right," he told her. "It was a man and he was very much interested to know what you were doing."

Susan waited for him to go on. She thought impatiently that he was being rather silly. Why so much secrecy?

"Don't you want me to tell you about it?" Waring was laughing at her openly now and the girl lifted her great, luminous eyes to his own in wonderment. Quietly she said, "Yes, very much. Please go on."

She was scarcely prepared for the name he uttered nor could she restrain the warm colour that flooded her cheeks.

"It was young Bob Dunbar," Jack Waring said. "And he was asking

for you."

"Bob Dunbar?" As in a dream she answered.

"Yes. The old man wants some sort of Elizabethan shack out at Half-Day, you know, and Heath told me to run over and give him a line on it."

"No. I didn't know." Outwardly Susan was composed, but that throb of her blood told the tale.

"He's a handsome devil, isn't he?" pursued Waring. "Where'd you meet him?"

"She kept her fingers steady on the keys."

"At business school. He was taking the course—some whim of his father's. Yes. He's very nice."

"Very nice. Very nice." The futile, foolish words mocked her. As if she hadn't been dreaming of Robert Dunbar's image for months.

MANCHUKUO CUSTOMS

THE DAIREN STAFF RESIGNS

Hankow, June 26.
Despite the prevailing stringent attitude of the Nanking Government regarding the Dairen Customs, it was reported to-day from Japanese sources, that the Man-
chukuo's policy remains unchanged
and the Chief of the Bureau of Taxation of the Finance Ministry,
Mr. Matsuzo Gonda, hurriedly left
for Dairen to-day.

In this connexion, it is reported that the Manchukuo Government is adamant, and in the event of
failure to take over the Dairen
Customs, it is prepared to establish one in the leased territory as a final measure. The place selected for such a Manchukuo Customs has already been elected, namely, at Wafangdian, and the necessary preparations have been completed to construct a new Customs Building with a sum of Yen 20,000.—Reuter.

Seizure Of Customs.

Dairen, June 25.
The Manchukuo has started to take over all the Customs in Manchuria except Dairen.

Owing to Mr. Fukumoto's dismissal all the Japanese officials
of the Dairen Customs have decided to tender their resignations.
Not Manchukuo Instructions.

Emphasising that his action in refraining from remitting the Customs revenue to Shanghai was not taken under instructions from Manchukuo, Mr. Fukumoto, in a statement regarding his dismissal, explained that dual collection of customs would have been inevitable, and leading to serious international complications, if the revenue had been remitted to Shanghai, and it was
for the purpose precluding the possibility of such a situation
that he took what he considered
to be the best step.—Reuter.

Japanese Resign.

Dairen, June 26.
All of the Japanese officials of the Customs have resigned, and in a statement declare it is their intention to work for the autonomy of the Manchukuo
Customs, owing to Nanking's refusal to heed Mr. Fukumoto's attempt to reach an amicable agreement between Nanking and the Manchukuo Government.—Reuter.

Bank To Remit Customs.

Dairen, June 26.
Following an order from the Manchukuo Government, the customs revenue which the bank is holding, pending a settlement of the dispute, will be remitted to the Manchukuo Government to-morrow.—Reuter.

Japan's Protest.

Tokyo, June 25.
The Japanese Government has protested to Nanking regarding the dismissal of Mr. Fukumoto,
Commissioner of Customs at Dairen, as contrary to Article III
of the 1907 Agreement which stipulates that there must be no
dismissals or appointments of customs officials at Dairen without first consulting the Governor of Kwantung.

In protesting against the arbitrary step taken, disregarding the negotiations at present taking place at Peking and aiming at an amicable solution, Japan holds the Chinese Government responsible
for whatever developments which might be precipitated.

Tokyo Perturbed.

Official circles are said to have been perturbed on learning that the Manchukuo is definitely preparing to establish a Customs Office on the Wafangdian border
of Kwantung and the leased
territory if Dairen refuses to remit to Changchun as entail
double payment of Customs,
though unofficial observers consider that Nanking's dismissal of
Mr. Fukumoto opens the way for Japan to negotiate with Manchukuo the whole question of the Manchurian Customs. Hence
Japan's intimation to Nanking
that China will be held responsible for whatever developments
which may arise.

Although it is still asserted
Japan is not likely to recognize
Manchukuo before the Lytton
Commission's report is published,
it is expected that one of Count
Uchida's first acts after his installation as Foreign Minister,
probably on July 5, will issue a statement clarifying Japan's aims and intentions in Manchuria.—Reuter.

Nanking Replies.

Nanking, June 26.
It is understood that the Foreign Office has already replied
to the Japanese protest over the dismissal of Mr. Fukumoto, the Dairen Customs Commissioner,
the communication being handed
to the Japanese Consul here last night.

The terms of the letter have not yet been divulged.—Reuter.

Denial That Dismissal War Illegal.

Shanghai, June 26.
Sir Frederick Maze, Inspector
General of the Chinese Maritime Customs, issued a reply this after-

LESSON SERMON.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENT, HONGKONG

"Christian Science" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist,
yesterday.

The Golden Text was—"When ye received the word of God which ye heard of us, ye received it not
as the word of men, but as it is in truth, the word of God, which effectually worketh also in you that
believe. (I Thessalonians 2: 13.)"

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible—"And it came to pass also on another sabbath, that he entered into the synagogue and taught; and there was a man whose right hand was withered. And the scribes and Pharisees watched him, whether he would heal on the sabbath day; that they might find an accusation against him. And looking round about upon them, he said unto the man, Stretch
forth thy hand. And he did so;
and his hand was restored whole as
the other." (Luke 6: 6, 10.)

The Lesson-Sermon also included
the following passage from the
the Christian Science textbook,
"Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker
Eddy—"Christian Science is dawning on a material age. The great spiritual facts of being, like rays of light, shine in the darkness, though
the darkness, comprehending them
not, may deny their reality. The proof that the system stated in this book is Christianly scientific resides
in the good this system accomplishes, for it cures on a divine demonstrable Principle which all may understand. (p. 546.)"

HENDON DISPLAY.

AIR FORCE PUT THROUGH THEIR PACES

London, June 25.
Representatives of all nations, including many airmen who have achieved fame in war and peace witnessed the thirteenth Royal Air Force display at Hendon aerodrome to-day.

The programme included many thrilling and some comic events and the display afforded a fine opportunity to see all sorts of aeroplanes which would be at the service of Great Britain in time of emergency.

Of the 200 aeroplanes taking part, about half were of the new types which have raised the speed of air operations in one year by about 80 miles an hour.—*British noon with reference to the reported declaration of the Japanese Government that the recent dismissal of Mr. Fukumoto, Commissioner of Customs at Dairen, was contrary to Article 3 of the 1907 Dairen Agreement.

Sir Frederick Maze stated that the action of the Customs authorities in dismissing Mr. Fukumoto
did not contravene the agreement
and did not necessitate a consultation with the Kwantung
Government.

He quoted the first three articles of the agreement. The first says the Inspector General
will come to an understanding
with the Japanese Legation at Peking in cases of appointing a new commissioner, the second that staff members of the Maritime Customs be Japanese with the exception of a suddenly occurring vacancy, or temporary requirements in the service, when other nationalities may provisionally be sent to Dairen, and the third declares that the Inspector General will inform the Governor General
of the leased territory beforehand about the change.

Sir Frederick Maze points out
that prior to effecting the provisions of Article 3, it was first
necessary to execute the provisions
of Article 1. He said that Mr.
Fukumoto's successor had been duly nominated and when the Legation authorities concurred
with the nomination, the Government General of the leased territory
would be informed.

He concluded by saying that
Mr. Fukumoto's insubordination
was without parallel in the annals
of the Customs Service.—Reuter.

BACK AT MUKDEN.

Gen. Honjo's Survey by Air Concluded.

Harbin, June 26.
General Honjo, Commander-in-
Chief of the Japanese forces in Manchuria, has returned to Mukden after making flights over
most of the war areas in North Manchuria, including one in the direction of Taiheio, in which area General Ma Chan-shan is operating.

It is fully expected here that the Manchukuo will take over both
the Customs stations and the Post Offices by August 1, and probably
by July 1, if their arrangements are completed in time.—Reuter.

WIMBLEDON
TOURNEYSEVEN OF EIGHT
PLACES FILLED.

London, June 25. Of the last eight places in the Men's Singles at Wimbledon, seven have already been filled, four more qualifying on Saturday in addition to "Bunny" Austin, Jiro Satoh and Ellsworth Vines, all of whom got through on Friday.

There were no surprises with the sole exception of the defeat of Jean Borotra, the remaining French "hops", who went down unexpectedly to Moler, the Spanish No. 1, by three sets to one.

The others among the last eight not mentioned are Francis X. Shields, Sydney B. Wood (holder), and F. J. Perry. Shields did not have an easy passage, but was given a hard fight by Menzel, who won the fourth set after 22 games. The American won the other three sets quite comfortably.

Wood won in straight sets from his countrymen, Gregory Mangin, while Fred Perry was not seriously extended by Wilmer Allison. Perry won the first two sets in convincing fashion, ending up in the third, to win the fourth by 6-2.

The last place has not yet been decided. In the second round of the Mixed Doubles, Aoki and Mrs. Peacock beat Rodzanko and Senora Pons by 6-4, 6-3.

Their Majesties, the King and Queen were among the spectators today.

Results:

WHY NOT THE LATEST.

Much has been said about the Economy of Automobile Production by the Motor Giants with world wide manufacturing subsidiaries.

The fact is, of course that an independent manufacturer, provided he has enough production to demand, and get, the lowest prices on raw materials—as Studebaker does—can concentrate manufacturing and General Management to such an advantage that, assuming that Studebaker and one of these giants produce exactly the same car, Studebaker can produce it for less money. It's wise to buy a Studebaker.

DAYLIGHT-SAVING

The desirability of following Britain's example by adopting daylight-saving during the summer months is, we notice, again being urged in Malaya. This is a matter which is periodically aired in the East, but which somehow, in spite of manifest advantages, does not result in definite action. It is interesting to note that in Malaya some twelve years ago the issue was taken so far as the introduction of a Daylight-Saving Bill in the Legislative Council, but this measure was later withdrawn by reason of Unofficial opposition. It was shortly before this that Shanghai gave a temporary trial to the plan, but abandoned it later, partially, we believe, because other Far Eastern centres would not come into line. In the same year, the Hongkong General Chamber of Commerce went so far as to draft a resolution in favour of putting forward the clock by one hour during the period from May 1st. to September 30th., a plan which was supported by the Chinese Chamber. The Government was even approached on the matter, but at a special meeting of the General Chamber subsequently held, it was decided to make no change. In the following year, the subject was again raised, but the Chamber saw no reason for changing its mind. Since that time, very little has been heard locally of the matter, although every now and again correspondents raise the point why, in a Colony in which evenings are so short, we cannot follow the Old Country's example.

Despite the rebuff to the movement in 1920, many people in Malaya think it opportune to bring forward the issue once again. The change proposed twelve years ago was quite simple. The Bill proposed that the clock should be advanced by half an hour so that "without curtailing the present hours of work it will shorten the time in the morning before work is started, leaving a longer period of daylight after the day's work is finished for outdoor recreation."

Bankers jointly approved the plan, while the Municipal Commissioners also supported it. However, when the Bill came up for consideration, out of eight Unofficials seven opposed it, with the result that the Governor eventually decided to withdraw it, although at the same time saying he had not been influenced by the arguments against the measure. He still believed that it would be a very good thing, making for the health and happiness of the community, but he was persuaded to drop the Bill because he had obtained promises that by voluntary efforts the objects at which the Bill aimed would be largely attained. Actually, an era of starting and finishing work half an hour earlier was then begun and has to a certain extent been since maintained, but the practice is not by any means general. In many cases, we read, five o'clock has again come to be regarded as the normal time for closing down, and assistants who show a desire to leave half an hour earlier are not regarded with favour. This is one of the reasons why the subject has again been revived, in the hope of putting the matter on a regular and uniform basis.

Here in Hongkong, as we say, the question has lain dormant for some considerable time, but we do still hear advocates of the change urging its desirability. There is no sound reason, as we see it, why office work cannot begin here at eight o'clock in the morning in the height of summer and conclude at four. The arguments advanced against the change are those which were put forward before England decided to adopt the measure, and experience in the Old Country has shown the many advantages of the alteration, which is now automatically put into force every year. When the matter was raised in Hongkong in 1919, the Chinese Chamber went so far as to suggest that there should be daylight-saving all the year round—quite a good idea, too, considering the shorter evenings in the winter. The whole subject is, we feel, worthy of reconsideration here in Hongkong. Is it too much to hope that when another year comes round it will be taken up again?

The Right Use of Leisure.

One kind of unemployment not often mentioned in the discussions on the subject is that which affects a person who is in receipt of a livelihood but who does not know how properly to employ the hours when he is not earning it. None can measure its extent. Statistics are unavailable. But personal observation is more eloquent than figures in showing that it takes in a large element of the world's population. The proof lies in the constant quest for diversion. Fundamental in the definition of diversion is its absence of lasting satisfactions. It is a ready-made pleasure, thriving only on novelty, which, having passed, ceases to be any other than a boring pursuit, and in consequence is soon abandoned. One after another time-consuming device is sampled and dropped. The more desperate the effort to escape ennui the quicker it fails. So far as a large number of people are concerned, no competitor has yet been found to outdo the motion picture show in its ability to take care of the time which hangs so heavily on their hands. The cinema makes a bigger claim even than that. It will chase tedium away. But how? Hollywood studios are pouring out many films whose chief function seems to be to titillate the senses. In the process they often instil wrong values into the younger members of the community. Is this the way that leisure is going to be used? The question is urgent, because we are living in an age which is already discussing a five-day week seriously. The proper employment of leisure will then assume a social significance of the first order. This emphasis on proper leisure-time occupation does not mean that there is no place for diversification. Such a place must be readily apparent in any community life. The fault is that too many persons carry diversion beyond the border line of moderation. Like the transformation of thrift into miserliness, it then becomes pernicious. The restoration of a right relation in pleasures would give a larger place than is now taken to the pursuit of skill, recreation, and beauty. Those who seek these are fully employed because they are adding to experience and building up their usefulness.

Mr. M. J. B. Montargis will be the speaker at the Rotary Club meeting to-morrow, his subject being "The New French Foreign Legion." The meeting on July 5 will be a closed meeting for the purpose of arriving at a decision regarding the playground scheme for 1932-33. So far, 61 promises or subscriptions, totalling $1,955, have been received and it seems reasonable to assume that members at present on leave will be good for about $400 more, states the Club bulletin.

Dr. C. C. Wang, M.D., C.H.B. (Edin.), formerly research fellow of Edinburgh University, and late lecturer on anatomy in the University College of London, has started practice in Shanghai. Wang is a younger brother of Dr. Wang Chung-hui, D.C.L., former President of the Judicial Yuan and now a Judge in the Permanent International Court of Justice. He practised until very recently in Hongkong. His brother, Professor C. Y. Wang, of Hongkong University, died last year.

Sir Hari Singh Gour, leader of the Indian Nationalist party, and leader of the Opposition in the Indian Legislative Assembly at New Delhi, was a passenger by the Dollar liner President Polk, which passed through Hongkong during the week-end. He delivered a series of lectures in the Imperial University and the Hibiya Hall in Tokyo. Sir Hari Singh is accompanied by his daughter. It will be recalled that they were in Hongkong some weeks ago on their way north.

AMERICA'S TRAGIC THE ACCOUNTANCY BLUNDER OF ARMAGEDDON

By THE OLD STAGER

BEHIND the veil past which we mortals cannot see, do the illustrious shades still interest themselves in our affairs? If what Shakespeare tells us is true, and the spirits of the wise sit in the clouds and mock us, one debonair ghost must just now be smiling with gentle irony. Ten years ago the late Earl of Balfour said, not less forcibly, what Mussolini said yesterday, and Mr. Chamberlain is saying to-day. Mussolini, the architect of post-war Italy, shook the world's chancelleries with his imperious demand to end the blood feud, cease applying cash-register methods to history's supreme drama, and allow all question of war debts and reparations to pass into swift oblivion. In the historic Balfour Note, which everybody names but few could now quote, one of the greatest statesmen of our generation pleaded eloquently for all that the Fascist Dictator bluntly called, and what is more, clearly predicted all the evils that have come upon the world at large through the rejection of his wise counsel. After pointing out that Great Britain at that date in August 1922 was owed £3,400,000,000 in war debts, and owed America about a quarter of that sum, the Balfour Note stated that his Majesty's Government neither under-rated the evils of an unexampled situation nor were reluctant to make large sacrifices to end it.

We declared our readiness, ten years ago, if such a policy formed part of a satisfactory international agreement, to remit all debts due to us by our Allies or by Germany. Then the Balfour Note proceeded: "It is true that Great Britain is owed more than it owes, and that, if all inter-Allied War Debts were paid, the British Treasury would, on balance, be a large gainer by the transaction. But can the present world situation be looked at only from this narrow financial standpoint? It is true that many of the Allied and Associated Powers are, as between each other, creditors and debtors or both. But they were, and are, much more. They were partners in the greatest international effort ever made in the cause of freedom, and they are still partners in dealing with some at least of its results."

Longing for Normality. After observing that these debts were incurred, and loans made, not for the separate advantage of particular States, but for a great purpose common to them all, Lord Balfour proceeded: "To generous minds it can never be agreeable, although for reasons of State it may perhaps be necessary, to regard the monetary aspect of this great event as a thing apart, to be torn from its historical setting, and treated as no more than an ordinary commercial dealing between traders who borrow and capitalists who lend. The economic ill from which the world is suffering are due to many causes, moral and material, but amongst them must certainly be reckoned the weight of international indebtedness, with all its unhappy effects upon the credit and exchange, upon national production and international trade. The peoples of all countries long for a speedy return to the normal. But how can the normal be reached while conditions so abnormal are permitted to prevail? And how

If ever a voice from the grave sounded with prophetic truth, it is in the Balfour Note. The debt we owed America was not even contracted on our own account. The United States insisted that we should back the bill of loans to enable our own and America's European Allies to carry on the contest against Germany's challenge of military hegemony. To the letter of that bond we have been held by America. With accruing interest, we are pledged to repay almost twice the sum actually loaned to us on behalf of our Allies. And America stipulated that the repayment must be in American gold dollars. Against payment in kind, America erects insurmountable tariff walls. Every cent of the loaned billions was spent in America. Every cent has to go back again in gold.

Mussolini calls this a bargain of Shylock. Lord Balfour merely said a general sentiment would be "of more value to mankind." What the British statesman expressed with buttoned foil, Mussolini drove home with a bludgeon. An Act of Oblivion. Lord Balfour was an amateur of the violin. His famous Note is couched in harmonic cadence. Mussolini plays the concertina and expresses himself in terms of that instrument. It is possible that less virtuosic methods are more likely to appeal to American susceptibilities. Not the least of the tragedies of the Great War is that its epic of mutual effort, its comradeship in arms should ultimately be regarded and humiliated into a vulgar haggling over red-lined accounts. The august silence of the historic battlefields, and the hushed aura of millions of headstones where sleep the heroes who fell rebuke the outrage on human idealism. It makes a gargoyles of the sun.

But it is futile to get angry with America. In the United States the sentiment of enlightened citizenship has all along been fiercely in favour of an act of financial oblivion.

But America is a great democracy. And American democracy, with its complicated interests adroitly played on by American dollar magnates and grafting politicians, is not sufficiently enlightened or ennobled to grasp the ethics of the amazing situation. It fails even to realise that its own selfish interest would be far better served by forgoing usury than by demanding its pound of flesh. Perhaps a new country, with a hybrid stock, lacks the sense of noblesse oblige that in great issues can and has inspired older nations of more authentic breeding.

It remains to see whether, at this intolerable crisis in the world's economic, the older wisdom and clearer prescience of Europe can cut the Gordian knot that for a decade has strangled both the new and the old world like a monstrous Laocoon group. If the familiar prayer, "Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors," makes no appeal to the modern descendants of the Pilgrim Fathers, then Europe's choice lies between firmly refusing to be bled to death or supinely waiting for America to make thumbs down signal to civilisation.

THE FRIENDS I LEFT BEHIND ME

A YOUNG HUSBAND'S PLAINT.

THE honeymoon is over and done with, and I am rapidly becoming domesticated. There is one thing that is worrying me a lot. I am definitely losing touch with all my old pals.

At that wild and wonderful party we had just before the great event took place we all swore we would never lose touch and that everything would be as it was before. How they must have smiled at me behind their hands. They came to the wedding—they cheered as we left the church, and I have recognised it as being good-bye.

Only the other night I got back from the office and felt I would like a cheery evening again with some of the old gang. I rang up four, funny, but not one of them was free. They were all doing something or going to parties to which I had not been asked, or said they were.

It was never like that in the old days, and I will admit I did feel a bit sore. I think I am exactly the same sort of fellow I was and yet

Marrage should not change a man to that extent.

Now when I meet a pal in the street there is an air of restraint between us. Conversation drags, and we both pause trying to think of something to say. Then we murmur some inanities and pass on. (Continued on Page 9.)

SOLDIERS RAID GOLF CLUBREGULAR ORGY OF DRINKING*SENT TO GAOL

Following a raid made on the clubhouse of the Kowloon Golf Club on Saturday morning Privates William Clogg and Albert Short-house, of the South Wales Borderers, were charged before Mr. Fraser, at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, with stealing 21 bottles of beer, two glasses of orange squash, four glasses of whisky, four packets of Rowntree's chocolates, eight cigars, 12 packets of Golf Flake cigarettes and five golf balls.

FOUND DRUNK.

Sergeant Butcher, who prosecuted, told his Worship that he received a telephone message asking him to proceed to the Kowloon Golf Club, and on arrival, at about 10.15 a.m., he found two soldiers behind the bar apparently drunk. Lying on the counter and scattered about the clubhouse were 21 beer bottles. He took the defendants to the station.

Mr. E.R. Price, an official of the Golf Club, said the total property taken by the defendants amounted to $27.50.

Interrogated by his Worship, the bar-boy of the Club said the defendants walked in at about 9.10 a.m. and demanded some drinks. He refused, whereupon they drove him out of the bar and helped themselves.

PHONE STOPPED.

He tried to ring up for assistance, but they prevented him by holding down the receiver. He added that he was alone in the clubhouse at the time.

His Worship:—What time did you first attempt to ring up for help?

Witness:—At about 9.45. What did you do between 9.10 and 9.45?—I didn't know what to do. I was so frightened.

So between those times, you did absolutely nothing?—Yes.

PREVIOUS CONVICTION.

A military officer, who was in Court, said Shorthouse had a previous conviction at Home, having served four months in Portsmouth for maliciously damaging a car on March 22, 1930. Except for this civil conviction, he was quite a good soldier. Clogg had no civil conviction but his military record was bad. Shorthouse was sentenced to four months' hard labour and Clogg to two months.

GANDE, PRICE DEFRAUDEDJAPANESE UNDER ARREST

According to a police report issued this morning, Messrs. Gande, Price & Co., the well-known local wine merchants, have been the victims of a fraud, by which they are said to have been deprived of a sum of $20,000.

In this connexion, B. Tan, a Japanese, described as being unemployed and having no fixed address, has been arrested by the police, the charge, it is alleged, being that he embezzled this sum which he is stated to have received on behalf of Messrs. Gande, Price & Co.

The police are reticent over the case, but they have disclosed that forgery is also involved, and that Tan, when he appears before the Magistrate to-morrow, will be also charged with uttering a forged document.

TSUN WAN'S NEW DISPENSARYOPENED BY SIR WM. HORNEILL

There was a large gathering at the official opening of the Tsun Wan Dispensary and Maternity Home by Sir William Horneill yesterday afternoon. To be conducted under the auspices of the New Territories Medical Benevolent Society, the Home, with its full-time doctor, will do incalculable good among the farming class living in the district.

In his speech prior to the opening ceremony, Sir William regretted the lack of co-ordination between health organizations whose aim was a common one. The position was puzzling, and it close co-operation could be achieved, the aim would be sooner accomplished.

Sir William Horneill and other guests, who included the Hon. Mr. T. N. Chau, and Col. and Mrs. Myles, were received by the village elders.

After Sir William had opened the front door with a golden key, the home was inspected. Its compactness, cleanliness and entire suitability were favourably commented on.

There are 12 rooms, which include the doctor's, dispenser's and nurses' quarters, ward, surgery, dispensary, waiting room and bathroom.

Dr. Arthur Woo, chairman of the committee, introduced Sir William Horneill.

FOOCHOW NOTESPIRATES SEIZE TEA CARGO

Fuchow, June 26.

The latest act of "piracy" (it seems almost too good a word to use) is the capture, a few days ago, of one of the small steamers that ply between Fuchow and Samsao. She was on her way to Fuchow with a large and valuable cargo of tea, when the pirates took possession. Details are lacking, but no doubt the usual lines were followed. One cannot help wondering why better precautions are not taken, and how long this kind of thing is to go on.

A well-known bandit leader, who at times was recognised as an officer in the "Army", was shot outside the West Gate of Fuchow a few days ago. He had some months ago had things all his own way in the Kufien region, but the day of reckoning came at last. It will, however, require something more than such executions to get rid of banditry from this Province.

The graduation ceremony at the Fukien Christian University was held on Saturday, and was largely attended. The laying of the corner stone of the new Women Students' Dormitory building took place at the same time. This marks a new step in the history of the University.

A large group of friends, Chinese and foreign, assembled to give the Rev. W.P.W. Williams and Mrs. Williams a good send-off, on their departure on a furlough recently. Mr. Williams has been working in Fuchow and Funing as a missionary of the Dublin University Fukien Mission, in connexion with the Church Missionary Society, for 27 years, and Mrs. Williams for about 18 years. They hope to spend part of their furlough in England and Ireland.—Our Own Correspondent.

KING'S THEATREFINE PROGRAMME NOW OFFERING

The King's Theatre management is at present offering a most attractive programme comprising an entertaining Ruth Chatterton film and a special dance display by Miss Beth Beri, who made her first Hongkong appearance yesterday.

In "The Magnificent Lie," Miss Chatterton plays the part of a cabaret girl, and although we have seen her in roles more suited to her undoubted talents, she is none the less responsible for some fine acting. Opposite her plays Ralph Bellamy, as the young blind hero, and he makes the most of a difficult part, acting with restraint and understanding. Other parts are also well filled, notably that of the hero's chum, by Stuart Erwin.

Miss Beri made three appearances in all, and in these she demonstrated her versatility and charm. Her biggest success was the fan dance, which was wonderfully done and brought forth rounds of applause. Miss Beri should continue to be a great draw during her season here.

KOWLOON TONG CONTRACTCLAIM FOR MORE THAN $20,000

Over $20,000 is in dispute in a case which was commenced in the Supreme Court this morning before the Chief Justice (Sir Joseph Kopp). The claim is for work done in the north section of Kowloon Tong about two years ago.

The Tung Mow firm are the plaintiffs and the Li Hing firm the defendants.

The original contract between the parties was for the removal of 1,100,000 cubic yards of earth and stone at an agreed price of $173,600. Of this amount $126,267.32 was paid, leaving a balance of $47,332.68.

In May, 1931, the plaintiffs obtained judgment for $238,775 and were given leave to sue for the balance. Conference have since been held and certain agreements reached until the amount at present in dispute is $21,647.

When the case was called this morning, Mr. H. G. Sheldon appeared for the plaintiffs. The defendant firm was not represented.

One of the partners came forward to explain his case.

It was pointed out at this stage that the defendant named in the original writ was dead. There were two other partners and judgment was now sought against the firm through them.

The partner who appeared in Court said his colleague was "up country." As soon as he heard that the case was to come on, he sent a messenger to bring him back but so far had received no reply. He asked for an adjournment.

Mr. Sheldon at first agreed but later suggested that he might outline his case and put his one witness into the box. The Chief Justice agreed, but after Mr. Sheldon had finished his opening address, the Chief Justice granted an adjournment until July 14th.

Mr. Sheldon referred to the judgment granted to his clients for $238,775. "A stay of execution was granted at the time," said Mr. Sheldon, "and I would now ask your Lordship to lift this."

The Chief Justice granted the application.

MOTOR HORN POSSESSIONMALAYAN FOUND GUILTY

Described as a Malayan born in Rangoon, of Chinese paternal parentage, a middle-aged man, who appeared before Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning on a charge of being in unlawful possession of a motor car horn, was fined $20 with the alternative of one month's hard labour in default.

The defendant, whose name was given as Ali, said that he had been given the horn by a friend to sell, the proceeds to be divided equally between them. He did not know from whom the friend got the article.

Detective Sergeant A. Kinnear informed his Worship that the defendant was arrested on Friday at mid-day in Queen's Road, West near Eastern Street. He had the horn concealed in his trousers, the reed of which was in his pocket. When asked where he had got the article, he said that he had brought it from Singapore where he had used it as a musical instrument to accompany him in his singing.

His Worship:—Does it produce more than one note?

Prosecuting Officer:—Only one note, your Worship.

The defendant said that he came to Hongkong five years ago, although he had been working in Canton until about three weeks ago, when he came to Hongkong.

Remembering that it was clear enough that the defendant knew the horn was unlawfully obtained, or he would not have carried it concealed in his trousers, his Worship imposed a fine of $20.

MOTOR MISHAP LUCKY ESCAPE FOR PEDESTRIAN

Near the Central Theatre, yesterday, Mr. H. A. Waller, of the Hongkong Brewery and Distillers, was driving his car, No. 2075, when he saw a Chinese leave the pavement and walk across the roadway, seemingly oblivious to the near approach of the vehicle.

An urgent toot on the horn fell on deaf ears. The man continued on his way, and was knocked down by the car before Mr. Waller had had time to pull up.

Fortunately, the man, who had been struck by the left front mud-guard, was not seriously injured, and appeared to be quite sound in limb as he walked away, refusing an invitation to proceed to hospital in the car.

A QUESTION OF TIDESHARBOUR MASTER KNOWS HIS HARBOUR

"I know a little more of the harbour than to believe all that rubbish," remarked the Hon. Comdr. Hole, at the Marine Court this morning, to a Chinese who was charged with having cleared port during prohibited hours and with having no lights. The defendant denied the first charge, but admitted the second.

In answer to the first charge, defendant said that he was north west of Stonecutters Island proceeding to Kennedy Town. He took that course as the tide was against him.

Sergeant Peely, prosecuting, said that about 8.20 p.m. yesterday he sighted the defendant's junk about three hundred yards south east of Chengye Island, going towards the west.

Comdr. Hole commented that the tide at that time last night was ebb tide. Addressing the defendant he said "I know a little bit more of the harbour than to believe that rubbish. It was quite unnecessary to take that course, and it is no good coming up here to tell me that the tide was against you."

Defendant was fined $25 or three weeks' imprisonment on the first count, and $10 or one week on the second.

Only one criticism is to be levelled at the British film "On Approval," now showing at the Queen's. The principal figures in this light-hearted London farce are Tom Walls, Yvonne Arnaud, Winifred Shotter, which has, however, done far too many pictures as a group to enable the successive films turned out to achieve their maximum appeal. They appear in very similar roles, and the variety is provided only by the dialogue. "On Approval" would be highly entertaining as the first effort of Tom Walls' little coterie of players—as the fifth or sixth. It is rather monotonous, despite the superficially fine work put in.

It was inadvertently stated on Saturday that a window of Windsor Brothers was broken by soldiers on Friday night. The window, which was broken belonged to J. A. Windsor & Co. of Hankow Road, and not Windsor Brothers, whose premises are in Nathan Road.

ANOTHER WIN FOR CAMBRIDGE In Varsity Tennis

GAIN VICTORY BY TWELVE RUBBERS
TO TWO

Cambridge University won the forty-eighth match against Oxford University on the hard courts at Fenner's by twelve rubbers to four. When Cambridge had established their obvious superiority by winning twelve of the sixteen matches, the five remaining doubles were abandoned. Cambridge now lead by 24 victories to 14 in the series, with ten encounters drawn. In 1929 Oxford won by 12-9 after a sequence of four losing years and have not been successful since that date.

As has been the case in recent years C. E. Malfroy, the Light Blue captain, had a super-abundance of talent from which to choose his team. There was available, besides himself, the two Indian Davis Cup players, C. R. D. Tuckey (a Trials choice) and two former junior champions of Great Britain, in addition to several other seniors who would have won their places in any normal year. Malfroy finally selected Tuckey and Freshwater to fill his singles team, the latter being preferred over one or two seniors in residence. He is only in his first year and doubtless gained experience in the Varsity match which should be of value to Cambridge in future years. For the doubles Malfroy, who paired with Gandar Dower last year, took Charanjiva as his partner, Nuthall and Tuckey remaining together, while half Blues were awarded to J. L. H. Fletcher and H. D. Mackinnon.

OXFORD UP AGAINST IT.

Oxford realised that they were up against a stiff proposition in facing such a formidable side but were by no means disheartened and have shown considerable improvement in their later matches. Tinker and Frank especially have been doing well and they confirmed these good impressions by obtaining three rubbers between them in the singles on Saturday. Only three old Blues were available, and the team was filled by Vanderapp and two colonials, Frank and Naran. E. J. David, brother of H. F. David, won a place in the doubles with de Saram, Irons and Frank being another new partnership, while Finnigan paired with Tinker as first pair.

The best match of the morning was that in which Tinker beat Malfroy. Considering the state of the court and the poor light the play was surprisingly good. The New Zealander soon held a lead of 5-2 by means of a forecourt game. Tinker, realising that his passing shots held no terrors for his opponent, changed his game in the nick of time and driving Malfroy to the back of the court by lobs and seeking the net himself he made up the lost ground and won five consecutive games for set, and the match at 7-5 6-4. Tinker was at the top of his form against Madan Mohan in his second match and attacked strongly throughout from the net to win by 6-2 6-2, a reversal of last year's encounter between the two. The Indian player was not happy on the hard courts and seemed to find difficulty in making a winning drive against his agile opponent. G. C. Frank was the only other Oxford man to secure a singles victory and he ought to have won both his rubbers for in his second match he led Charanjiva by 5-2 in the final set and held four match-points before losing in the twelfth game.

INDIAN'S FINE PLAY.

Heavy rain suspended play before lunch and the first round of the singles was only concluded in the afternoon, Cambridge then leading by 5-1. A round of doubles was then played and Cambridge won two matches. The second round of singles soon gave Cambridge the victory, five being completed in a short time to give the home team a lead of 10-4; and (Continued on Page 9.)

APRIL THE FIFTH'S

RACE AGAINST TIME

HALF MINUTE
SHORT OF BEING A NON-RUNNER

OWNER ALMOST MAD

Mr. Tom Walls has disclosed how nearly he came to losing the Derby, which is far and away the most remarkable story of one of the most remarkable Derbies that have ever been run.

It was only by a matter of 30 seconds or so that his cousin, Mr. Sidney Walls, who assists him in training his horses, was able to get to the weighing room in time to declare him a runner.

It all happened like this. Mr. Walls' stables are less than a mile from the paddock, but knowing what the traffic is like on Derby Day he decided to send the colt in a motor-horse box instead of risking his being upset by walking through the line of cars.

April the Fifth left his stables with plenty of time to spare, but the traffic congestion was so great that he was hung up on the road.

A MATTER OF SECONDS.

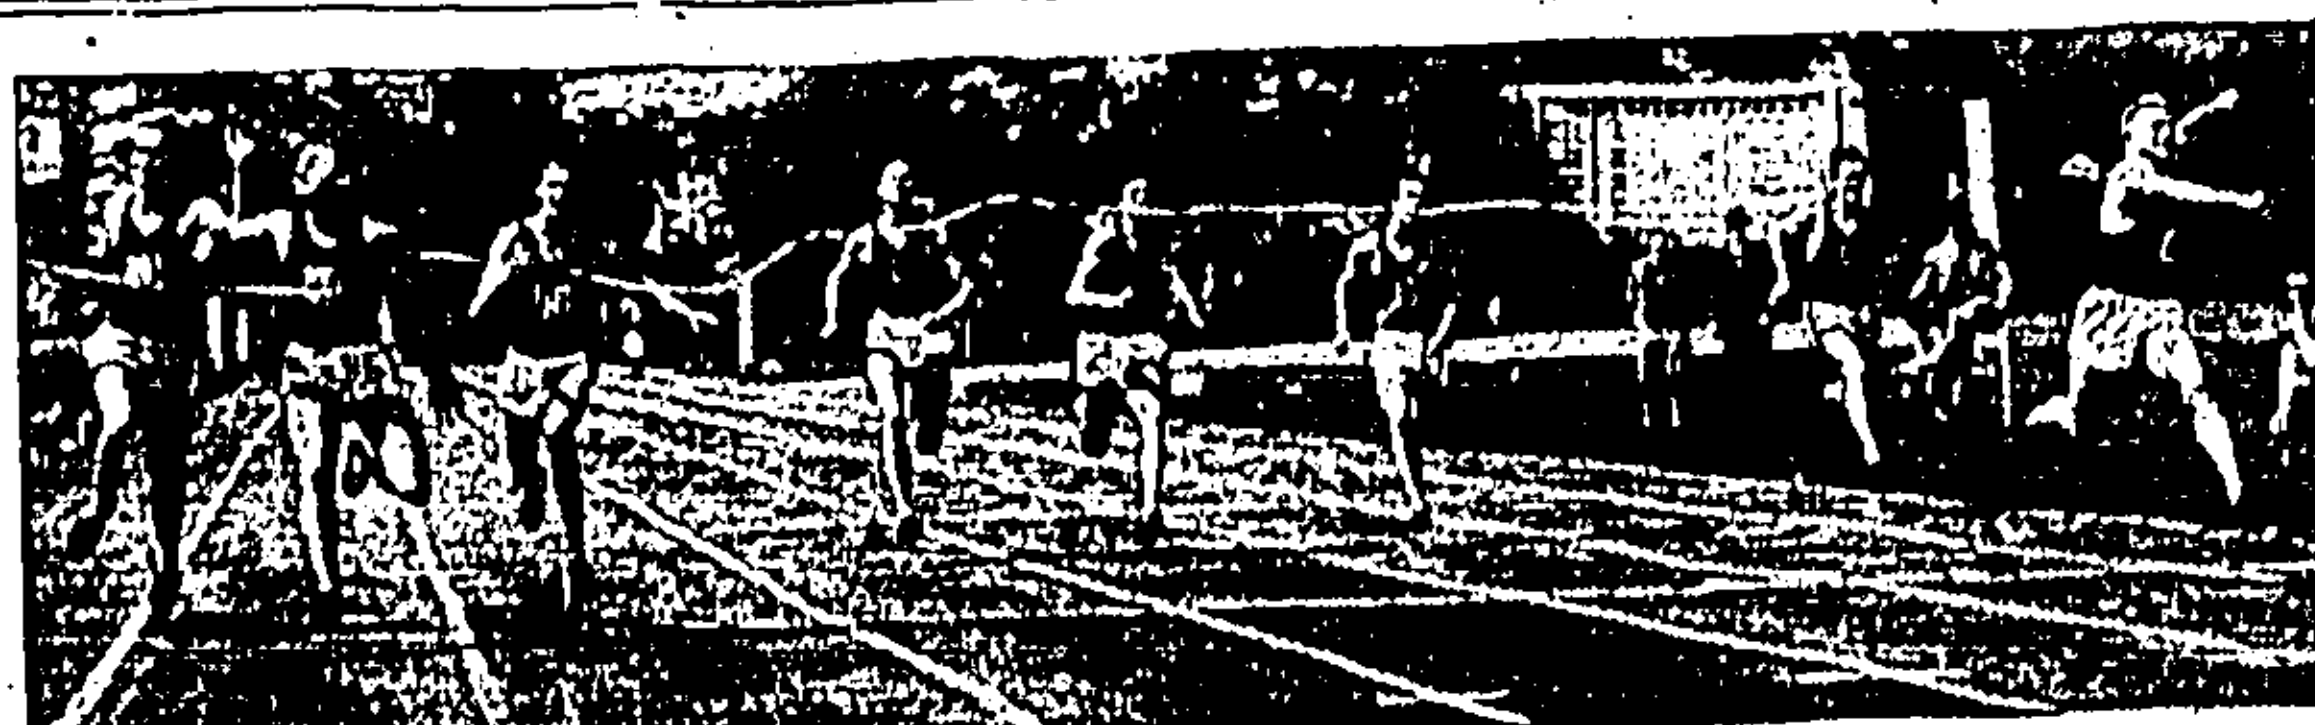

Mr. Sidney Walls waited and waited, and then realised that there was only half an hour to go before the race.

He left the horse box and ran to the weighing room, arriving only just in time to put the declaration in. Then he returned and found the horse box still hung up in the traffic.

His only chance of ever getting to the paddock in time was to take the colt out of the box and walk him. Which he did. In and out of the traffic with all its distractions April the Fifth was led. It says a great deal for his equable temperament that he was never upset.

Meanwhile Mr. Walls was waiting in the paddock for the horse, almost mad with anxiety.

Again it was by a margin of seconds that he was saddled in time and sent out to take his place in the parade—and win the Derby.

MIXED CRICKET; A
FINE HALFMILER;
SWORDSMANSHIP

Oxford, May 31.

Oxford is now very nearly an island, and the rivers are still rising. Not only are they flooded, but most of the roads as well. It was touch and go whether the Eights would be continued on Monday, and, though the races did take place, on Monday night the uncertainty still remained about Tuesday's programme.

So far there has been a very large number of bumps. Last year the total came to 71. After the racing on Monday night this number had already been passed, 73 bumps being recorded in the first four night's racing.

Magdalen wasted no time in going Head. The first two nights were sufficient for them to go up from third place. Now that they have reached the top, it will be a difficult task to dislodge them. They have been rowing with a 3-2 steady stroke, which is just suited for a head of the River boat.

Indians in the Parks.

Cricket this last week has been practically, if not literally, a wash-out. We were very sorry indeed that the weather was so bad for the All-India match. The Indians did, it is true, give us a delightful batting treat, but we had been looking forward to seeing them on the hard wickets to which they are accustomed at home. But although the wicket was soft, Wazir Ali made an excellent 100, and Nissar's fast bowling, which was the first they had experienced this season, proved too much for our batsmen. Barlow again showed what a fine bowler he is, and topped Oxford's bowling averages.

Melville continues to make progress after his accident last week, and we are all glad to hear that he will be fit to come back into the side again when the Varsity goes on tour after term. Oldfield has also been in the wars, but what was once thought to be a splintered shoulder-bone turned out to be only a bad bruise. That is unfortunate enough in itself, but it is not so serious as report first rumoured.

Mixed Cricket.

There seems to have been little other cricket during this last week, except for a match between the Magdalen "Medicos" and an XI. called from the Ladies' Colleges. A most delightful match it was, too. In it brother and sister met on the cricket-field in friendly rivalry, and if brother was unchivalrous enough to make 20 not out, sister showed her prowess by taking a goodly crop of wickets. The game, came to an exciting finish, for the male Magdalen Medicos, captained by the Dean of the Medical School, won by one run.

On Friday and Saturday our athletes showed their worth on the track at Madair Park in the Universities' Athletic Union Championships. This was the first year that either Oxford or Cambridge had competed. The U.A.U. authorities had paid us the compliment of saying that they would appreciate the entry of a team from Oxford, and we did the best we could to repay that compliment by sending the strongest team that "Schools" and other circumstances would allow.

Cornes As Usual.

The team entered as "Oxford Centipedes"—the intra-University Club that corresponds to the Authentics, Greyhounds, Centaurs, Penguins, and other fauna—and won by a comfortable margin. Once again Cornes was our "star." He won the half-mile as he liked, and 1½ hours later the mile also. In the latter the finish was actually a very close one, but Cornes was running well within himself, and could have won by several yards instead of rather less than one. He was hoping, however, that by hanging back he could help Lovelock along into second place. But it was not to be, for Helms, of Birmingham University, the winner in the two previous years, beat him by inches, and thereby lowered his previous best time for the mile by a good ten seconds.

The O.U.A.C. are busy now getting ready for their stilted match of the term, against the A.A.A. team. This match takes place on Thursday this week, and a large crowd is expected down at Ilford, to see us battling with the champions that have been chosen to compete against us.

SIAMESE AIRMAN ARRIVES.

A life's ambition was fulfilled yesterday when Luan Phongsobhon, young Siamese aviator, completed his first long distance flight, having flown from his native Bangkok and arrived at Hongkong. He landed safely on the Kai Tak field at 2.30 in the afternoon. Among those who met him was Mr. J. T. Ingram, the Consul for Siam in Hongkong.

Trained at Parks Air College, in East St. Louis, in the State of Illinois, U.S.A., whether he went two years ago from Siam, Luan Phongsobhon had early on conceived the project, and when he returned to Siam, succeeded in interesting a number of friends and members of the general public. They subscribed the necessary funds, with which he acquired a Traveller Company's machine, the same kind in which he had flown for some time while in the States, named her "Miss Siam" and embarked on the adventurous flight.

He left Bangkok on Sunday, June 19, with the blessing of the City authorities, and made his first landing—a forced one caused by a heavy rainstorm—at Ralet, after having been four hours aloft. The guest of the local Siamese Governor, he slept in the latter's palace until the following morning, when he resumed his flight. Thakhek, in Laos, French Indo-China, was reached at 1 p.m. the same day. Weather conditions became so bad that for three days, in spite of repeated attempts, he was unable to surmount the great Annamite Range which hereabouts shoots up to a height of more than 1,000 feet.

Forced to Make Detour.

Eventually after three or four futile endeavours, he decided to make a detour from the direct route, and he followed the automobile highway to Nape. There is a landing field at Nape, but the aviator preferred not to make use of it, but to continue on his flight, handicapped as it was by fog and rain. Somehow or other he managed to nose his way successfully along the contour of the river valley, and arrived at Vinh. The landing field was some two miles from the town, but there is poor provision for an airman in the way of essentials. Luan Phongsobhon looked into his tank, and decided he had enough "gas" as he puts it, to make the next hop of 200 miles to Hanoi. He arrived there on a very bare margin and was warmly welcomed by the French military, who saw to it that he had what he wanted, in the replenishment of supplies.

Hampered by Fog.

Next morning, Friday, the aviator set out for Moncay on the Kwangsi border, but bad weather conditions still followed him there, and he was unable to locate the town. By turning south-eastward, he avoided the belt of fog, and reached Yokohama, thence to Long Moon, which he could easily pick up on account of its location at the head of a bay shown clearly on his map. Not for the first time, the single engine, with which the machine is equipped began to develop faults, and a forced landing became imminent. Mistaking a belt of quagmire along the seashore for sand, he descended and found himself firmly stuck. The machine would have nosed over under the circumstances, but fortunately it was provided with broad balloon tyres, and ran long before it became firmly embedded.

The wheels were half-in when the aviator went for assistance, which meant that he had to leave the machine to take care of itself while he trudged over difficult ground for over an hour before he reached Long Moon.

Assistance of course was available, but at such an exorbitant cost that it made Luan proceed about the task in a cautious manner. Eventually he secured some 20 coolies and led them back to the machine. He found it the subject of the attention of thousands who had gathered quickly from the countryside to have what was probably their first view of an aeroplane. The sightseers had not only inspected it, but had also pawed it about, with the result that it was covered all over with mud marks.

Embedded in Mud.

The mud in which the machine was embedded (it having now sunk down to the level of the fuselage) was of a quality very resilient, and resisted the efforts of the twenty stalwart labourers to tow the machine out. Another 15 men were thrown into the task, without any improvement in the situation. The tide was rising alarmingly and soon it became evident that the machine would be invaded by water. In these dire circumstances the airman did not lack resourcefulness. He had two sampans pushed under the fuselage, and with these acting as pontoons, giving the necessary uplift one under the wheels and the other under the tail, successful.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE MR LEE YOOK-QUAN.

LARGE CROWD AT CEREMONY YESTERDAY

The funeral took place yesterday afternoon of the late Mr. Alfred Lee Yook-quan, Chinese agent in the local office of the Canadian Pacific Co., who passed away on Friday at the French Hospital after a brief illness, suffering from an acute attack of typhoid fever. His death at the early age of 36 was a shock to his relatives and his many friends in Hongkong with whom he was most popular.

The deceased is survived by five younger brothers including Messrs. Lee Yook-lam, Lee Yook-tong (who succeeds the deceased in the Canadian Pacific) Lee Yook-choy, and Lee Yook-man, and six sisters. The late Mr. Lee also left a wife and a young son. The deceased received his early education in the Canton Christian College and later acted as the Chinese agent of the Canadian Pacific in Victoria, B.C. He succeeded to his father as the Hongkong Chinese agent in 1924.

The popularity of the deceased was manifest by the big gathering of prominent European and Chinese residents, including many officials of the Canadian Pacific Steamships, Limited, and Canadian Pacific Railway Company's Hongkong office, at the funeral yesterday. Among those present were Messrs. Allan Cameron, Oriental Manager of the C.P.R., L. E. N. Ryan, Major Ducloux, Messrs. W. J. Ridford, Billmoria, A. M. Parker, C. Pryce, E. Stone, R. Gutierrez, C. Thwaites, G. R. Payne, W. H. Peters, J. MacKenzie, T. C. Monaghan, Leung Yuan-woo, H. Shung-mok, H. M. Shu, Cheng Kam-to, Y. N. Chau, K. L. Chau, and many others.

Numerous wreaths from friends, local social and sports clubs with which the deceased was formerly connected, relatives and members of the Canadian Pacific staffs, were sent to the funeral.

MOTOR CAR MIX UP

FOUR VEHICLES CRASH IN GARDEN ROAD

A taxi, a public car and two private cars were involved in a series of crashes which occurred at Garden Road about 10 a.m. yesterday. Details are scant regarding how the first two vehicles, private car No. 188 and public car No. 264, collided, but it appears that after the mishap, which took place opposite the Helena, May Institute, the private car was slung astride the roadway.

The two other vehicles, a Star taxi No. 43, and a private car No. 670, are said to have been proceeding from opposite directions along Garden Road, and approached the first two vehicles. As they simultaneously made to clear the obstacle, both swerving to the right side of the road, they collided head on. The next instant all four vehicles piled together, but the remarkable feature was that none of the drivers or passengers of any of the vehicles was injured seriously although slight cuts from smashed wind-screens were sustained. All four cars were damaged.

The incident was reported to the Police by the four drivers concerned.

The League of Nations Commission, consisting of Lord Lytton's party, will leave for Japan on Tuesday next, making the journey via Mukden, Antung and Korea.—Reuter.

ly moved the machine out into the bay and landed it on an island.

"Hop" To Hongkong.

Back again on terra firma, the machine was extensively overhauled, and the airman again resumed his flight, on this occasion heading for Fort Bayard, Kwangchowwan, where he landed the same evening. The following morning yesterday, after breakfast with the French Administrator of Kwangchowwan, he set out on the last leg for Hongkong. Again fog intervened, and all along the coast the airman was forced to fly not higher than 300 or 400 feet above sea level. However, he duly arrived at Hongkong in the afternoon.

Luan Phongsobhon when interviewed at his apartment in Gloucester Building, told a press representative that he intended to stay here for three days before flying to Canton. From Canton he plans to make a return flight to Bangkok, following a route varying somewhat from his original one.

The machine, fitted with a Curtiss OX5 engine developing 90 h.p., and giving it a cruising speed of only 70 miles an hour, is a second-hand one, of comparatively low power. In view of this, and of the conditions which he had to overcome, the airman's performance is a really splendid one, and he is to be heartily congratulated.

DENTIST'S CASE CONCLUDED.

Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy on Saturday, concluded the re-hearing of the case in which Kwong Chouk-wah, described as an assistant to the late James Mak, was charged with unlawfully holding himself out as a dentist.

For the defence, Mr. Hin-shing Lo applied for a reduction of the fine of $200 inflicted at the original hearing on a conviction, his application being on the ground that certain facts favourable to, or disclosing extenuating circumstances for the defendant, had not been fully explained.

Quoting legal authorities, Mr. Lo, on the re-opened proceedings, argued that defendant was an "innocent agent" bound by a contract with his deceased employer, to produce the latter's business card, although the latter might not have the qualifications for practice as required by law. While it was admitted that the Police officer who called for a consultation might have been deceived by the card, it was the case for the defendant that he did not hold himself out as a dentist on his own.

Referring to the death of a British bluejacket from septic tonsillitis, alleged by the prosecution to have resulted as an after effect of dental treatment by the late James Mak, but which did not form part of their case, Mr. Lo anticipated that he would have had no difficulty in disposing of such a charge if it had been included.

After listening to a very long speech by Counsel, his Worship confirmed the previous conviction, but reduced the fine to $100.

As if every lineament of his splendid young face weren't burnt on her brain. Very nice, indeed!

She forced herself to say with desperate calm. "It's to be married, I believe?"

"I don't know about that," said Waring with infinite carelessness. "All the girls in that crowd are after him, I suppose. He has everything—money—looks—nice disposition. I've heard he's a bit wild." His voice dropped confidentially. "Now you would be exactly the sort of girl for that young man. You have brains and you're rather easy on the eyes yourself."

She moved her shoulders impatiently. Why couldn't the man leave? Her voice sounded heavy as lead as she answered, Susan said, "Ah, but you see, he doesn't want me."

She would have given a great deal to have the words back. In a panic she wondered if she had given herself away.

TREASURE SHARE

TUG MASTER'S CLAIM FOR EGYPT'S GOLD

London, June 26. There was a dramatic development in the salvage of the sunken Egypt's treasure, when the Italian salvage-ship Artiglio, which after many vain attempts, succeeded in reaching the vessel last week arrived at Plymouth with gold and silver from the Egypt, valued at £187,000.

The cargo was "arrested" and the holds sealed up, under instructions from the Admiralty Marshal. It is understood that the action is a sequel to a claim filed by Captain Jean Davy, formerly captain of the Great tug, Iroise, for a share in the gold, on the grounds that he was the first to locate the wreck.—Reuter.

Old War Horses.

[To the Editor, Hongkong Telegraph.]

Sir,—I enclose herewith an extract from the Sunday Sketch and Sunday News of May 22nd (as possibly many ex-Servicemen in Hongkong may not have seen this account) which proves clearly that the horrible traffic in old war horses abroad still continues. Many of your ex-Servicemen readers will I feel sure wish to come to the aid of their old war time pals, now in dire need, and the address to which subscriptions may be sent is given in the enclosed extract, or, if they prefer, I shall be glad to send any donations on their behalf or on behalf of any other animal lovers who wish to assist in stamping out this dreadful traffic if they will send such donations to me at No. 6, Leighton Hill or at the Colonial Secretariat.

D. DAVIES.
Enclosures.

Where to send.—A correspondent who signs himself "A Working Man" asks where he can "send a few shillings to stop cruelty of this kind." The answer is Lady Doris Gunston, 15 Smethwicke-crescent, London, W.2.

Most of these old friends of our soldiers are in Egypt—over 25 years old and worked chiefly at night as their condition would not be tolerated by the Police.

A Pitiful Tale.—Some 500 are still left, and the Society has to pay £6 a piece for them. In order that their owners shall not purposely starve and ill-treat them the Society's representative in Cairo writes me that more is paid for a decently treated animal. Here is an extract:—

"In the last 400 horses we have not seen a single sound animal—very many in the last stages of decrepitude, pain and starvation, but all working."

Unprintable Picture.—At the top of this page (right) I have reproduced a photograph sent me from Egypt. It is the least disgusting of a batch of seven, and I have in my possession one photograph that is no nauseating that it could not possibly be reproduced in any English newspaper.

It shows two animals that the Society is about to destroy after purchase.

A Kinder Fate.—Well, there it is; a nasty blot on the copy-book of a nation that professes to love animals. So disgustingly have we behaved that it would have been far better had they all been killed doing their bit.

SIAM'S KING RETURNS

ENTHUSIASTIC WELCOME

ROYALTY HELD AS HOSTAGES

(Reuter's Special Service).

London, June 26. The King of Siam, who was resting from the cares of government at Huahin, the well-known Siamese holiday resort when the revolution broke, returned to the capital to-day and was given a great ovation.

His reception was suggestive more of the arrival of the conquering hero than of a monarch whose hand had been forced in the granting of constitutional monarchy to the people.

The leaders of the coup are, however, taking no chances. Other members of the Royal Family are still imprisoned and it is indicated that they will be held as hostages during the time of the turnover from King Prajadhipok's administration.

They will be held until the new constitutional form of government is functioning properly.

STRIKING SCENES IN LONDON

Scenes of Oriental splendour marked the wedding of two socially prominent Chinese in London on June 26th, in the Church of St. Martin's in the Fields. The bride was Miss Rebecca To and the groom, Mr. Shiu Hong Ma, manager of Sincere Co. (London) Ltd., the London branch of the world-wide known organisation of Chinese enterprise. Mr. Ma has been Sincere's London Manager since his arrival in 1929, while Miss To arrived several weeks ago. Their engagement was celebrated in Hongkong almost immediately prior to Mr. Ma sailing for England.

Hundreds of Chinese attended the church ceremony, and the police were forced to hold back large crowds of interested Londoners, the sight recalling to their minds a similar scene during the christening of the Chinese baby at St. Paul's Cathedral, whose father was the predecessor of the present groom as Sincere's London Manager. The Anglican service was used but the word "obey" was omitted.

Two receptions were held, one in English style, a tea party, and the other a Chinese dinner. The guests included H. E. the Chinese

OPIUM HIDDEN IN MOUTH

CONTAINED IN SMALL BALLOON

"Do you usually carry things in your mouth? You are not a dog you know," remarked Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court this morning when a Chinese was charged with being in unlawful possession of 2.5 taels of prepared opium.

Revenue Officer W. Ward, who prosecuted, said part of the opium had been contained in a small balloon which the defendant had in his mouth. The officer pointed out that there would have been very serious consequences for the defendant if the rubber burst and he swallowed the opium.

A fine of $175, or two months' hard labour, was imposed, it being stated that the defendant had two previous convictions under the Opium Ordinance in 1921 and 1923.

Minister, Dr. & Mrs. Young, the Chinese Consul-General, Sir Robert & Lady Ho-tung, Sir Albert & Lady Spicer, Sir Dennison Ross & Lady Ross as well as many other important members of the financial and business community and representatives of various foreign consulates in London and other parts of England.

The honeymoon will be spent in Scandinavian mountains, Norway and Sweden.

Communist Convention in Manila

CONGRATULATED BY "SOVIET CHINA" GOVERNMENT

(Special to "Telegraph")

Manila, June 27.

Apparently without hindrance by the authorities, the Communist organisation in the Philippines is holding a three-days convention in Manila.

At the first day of the convention yesterday a resolution was passed declaring that the Communists of the Philippines are prepared to defend the Russian Soviet Union "world-wide attacks by Imperialists."

The convention is being held under the auspices of the "sons of Sweet Society," and the leaders are two men who are under sentence for sedition pending appeal.

Among the messages of congratulation received are those from the All-China Workers Union of Shanghai and the Provisional Government of Soviet China.

The opening session saw fiery attacks on Capitalism, Imperialism and Governor-General Roosevelt's salary reduction policy.—Reuter.

CANTON CHOLERA VICTIM

ANOTHER JESUIT PRIEST SUCCUMBS

It is with deep regret that we have to record the death in Canton, from cholera, of another Jesuit priest, in the person of the Rev. Fr. Joseph MacCullough.

The deceased, who belonged to the body of Jesuit Fathers working in Hongkong, came to the East in October, 1928, and proceeded to the College of Portuguese Jesuits in Shui Hing, to commence the study of the language. The following September, he went to Monseigneur Fourquet's school in Canton, where he has been for the past three years.

A particularly sad circumstance is that he contracted cholera whilst attending his stricken brother priest, the late Fr. Saul, who recently succumbed to the disease.

The late Father MacCullough was a man of most genial temperament, one who made friends wherever he went. He was an indefatigable worker, and it is difficult to estimate the heavy loss which his death has inflicted on the Mission. He was in his 44th year.
